

8 JURORS CHOSEN FOR BIRGER GANG MURDER TRIAL

Jury Expected to Be Completed Today at Marion, Ill., to Try Millich and Gowan for Killing Jones.

GHOSTS OF OLD FEUDS CALLED UP

"Are You Afraid of Charlie Birger?" One of Questions Prosecution Puts to All Veniemen.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., June 30.—The episode to Williamson County's notorious five years of riot, turbulence, clan and anti-clan warfare and gang feuds is unfolding in the little red courthouse on the square here. Five years ago Williamson County was burying the score of men shot down in a riotous outbreak of a mine strike. Today, with another strike in its coal mines slowing up the economic life of the county, some of the same men who gathered around the Leasner strike breakers, sit in the courtroom here watching the selection of a jury to try the first murder case growing out of the Birger-Shelton gang feuds, that followed the strike and clan warfare. The selection of juries to try the cases growing out of the mine riots ran into weeks. The selection of a jury to try Rado Millich and Earl Gowan for the murder of Ward "Casey" Jones, a fellow Birger gangster, is proceeding with the same care, in the same courtroom and before the same judge, Circuit Judge Hartwell, but in an entirely different atmosphere. The old feuds have been laid down. Instead of being a house divided against itself, Williamson County, it seems, is united against a common foe, the gangsters.

State Attorney Arlie Boswell, who Tuesday convicted a fifth Birger gangster of robbery, will ask the jury for the death penalty in the killing of Jones. City Judge Cook of Herrin, who was one of the defense lawyers in the mine riot trials and has been appointed by the court to defend Gowan, a 19-year-old boy, who deserted the farm to seek excitement in the Birger rendezvous, the Hut, Jones placed in temporary charge of the Hut while the chief was away, was killed there by Millich, who says he acted in self-defense. Eight jurors had been selected at 11:15 a. m. today when Judge Cook ordered to further selection on the ground that the court had excused two men from the first venire of 25 without giving them an opportunity to examine the case.

Court then recessed. The two gentlemen were notified to report later in the day. Besides the 23 from the first venire, the lawyers have exhausted most of the second, which contained 25 men.

"You know there has been gang warfare in the county, murders and other law violations," Attorney Cook tells a prospective juror, "would that influence your verdict?"

"Did you ever see the picture of the armed crowd before the Birger Hut?" he asks again.

"I presume you've heard all about the Birger gang and other gangs in this county," says Boswell. "Do you know Charlie Birger?" The invariable answer is "No" for Birger made his home in Saline, a neighboring county, but his but and other interests were in Williamson County. The lawyers in the county have heard of him.

CITY SWelters ALL NIGHT, TEMPERATURE 83 AT 10 P. M.

Drops to Minimum of 77 at 4 A. M., and Then Begins to Climb Once More.

St. Louis last night sweltered in its first midsummer heat with the temperature above 80 degrees until after 1 o'clock this morning. At 10 p. m. the thermometer stood at 83 degrees, only 10 degrees below the day's maximum, and there was only a light wind from the south. At midnight it was 81 and at 1 a. m. 80.

William E. Kelley, a laborer, was overcome by the heat this afternoon and fell unconscious while walking along Clark avenue near Sixteenth street. He was picked up by a passing motorist and taken to City Hospital where his condition was said to be serious. Kelley, who is 51 years old, lives at 1928 Provencher place.

The temperature fell off a degree an hour until 4 a. m., when it was 77 and began to rise again. At 8 a. m. today it was 85. An unidentified man about 65 years old was found unconscious, apparently from heat prostration, in a rooming house at 314 Clark avenue at 3 a. m. today. Dr. Layton of 1207 North Tenth street and Anthony Nichols of 2353 La Salle street, Negroes, were treated at City Hospital No. 2 yesterday for heat exhaustion.

Twins, 13 Years Old, Make Distance in 52 Hours, 30 Minutes, Nearly 5 Hours Under Record.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Bernice and Phyllis Zitzenfeld, the 13-year-old swimming twins, arrived at the Battery late this afternoon, breaking the record for the distance between Albany and New York. Their 52 hours and 30 minutes was 4 hours and 41 minutes faster than the record established previously by Lottie Schoenmiller.

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE FLY FROM BERNE TO PARIS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 30.—Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine, New York-to-Germany flyers, arrived at Le Bourget flying field from Berne, Switzerland, at 4:05 o'clock this afternoon. They left the Swiss Capital at noon.

The landing of the American flyers was perfect. Chamberlin said the trip from Switzerland was delightful. He and Levine will remain in Paris until July 5, when they will go to England. July 12 they will sail for the United States aboard the Leviathan.

Suit Against Countess Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Mrs. Emanuel Victor Modica's $500,000 allegation of affections suit against Countess Roger de Perigny was discontinued by Supreme Court Justice Mullan today, at the request of Mrs. Modica's attorney. The suit was brought three years ago. Mrs. Modica charging the Countess had sent many love notes to her husband, a chauffeur of Newark, N. J.

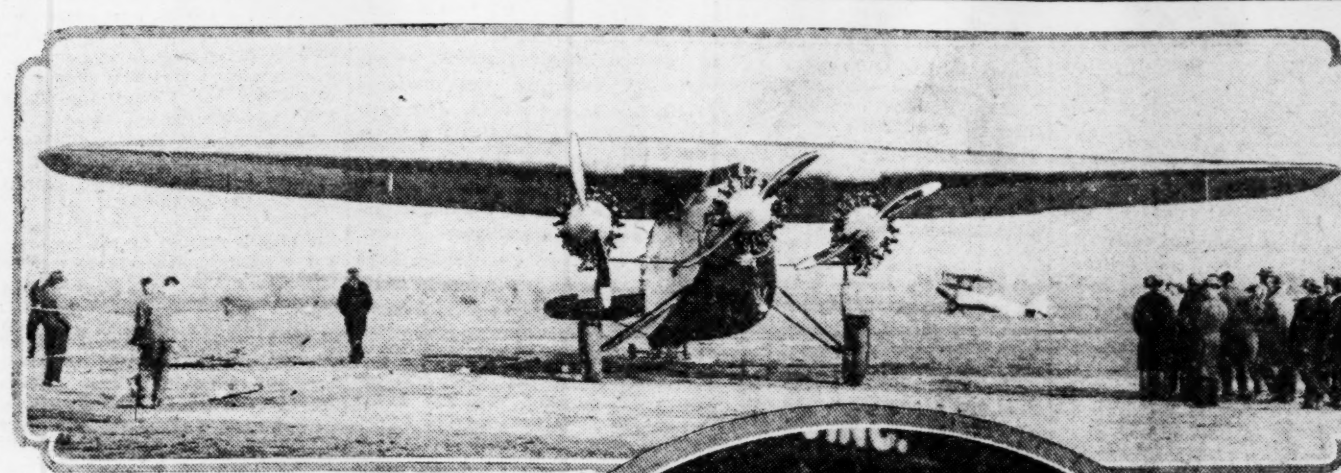

"You're not afraid of him?" asked Boswell pointedly. The veiled answer "No" in a tone that rings in the still, sultry courtroom and causes the swart, but bearded Millich to gaze more intently at the jury box through piercing, beady eyes and the pale, Jewish Gowan to look paler.

"Gowan," he relates, "had done some work for Birger, such as carrying home brew from the cabin to the barbeque stand and helping to make home brew. At all times was the handy man about the place doing the drudgery."

Radio Messages From Plane of Commander Byrd

NEW YORK, June 30.

The following radio messages have been received at various points from the monoplane of Commander Byrd: 2:45 p. m., Eastern daylight time (message to Rodman Wanamaker, relayed by the radio station at Ouessant, France): "Just crossed the border line of France at 18:45 G. M. T. (2:45 Eastern daylight time). Byrd."

7:40 (message picked up in Dublin): "We are coming in tonight. Just passed over French border. Will any planes meet us inside Paris?"

6:45 p. m. (European time)—(intercepted message to signal station at Ushant, near Brest): "I will fly over you in a few minutes. Byrd."

11:05 Eastern daylight time—Message received by Grover Whalen at Roosevelt Field: "We hope to sight land at end of hour. Crew feeling fine after strenuous trip. Byrd."

The message was picked up by the Quessant radio station, France, and relayed by the St. Tuscaloosa City.

10:50 Greenwich mean time (4:50 St. Louis time)—"We have seen neither land nor sea since 3 o'clock yesterday. Everything completely covered with fog. Whatever happens take my hat off to those three great fellows with me. Byrd."

5 a. m. St. Louis time (message to French liner Paris)—"We are 10,000 feet up in a freezing, dense fog. Position 11° Greenwich Meridian time, 49.33 north latitude, 18.10 west longitude. Fine, thanks. You have helped us a lot. BYRD."

Yesterday.

The following sent by Lient. Noville from the America at Brest: 7:09 p. m.: "No time to waste with code now, this radio is hectic job. With regards. Noville."

An earlier message sent by Noville at 6:32 p. m. (Eastern daylight time), said: "Working out set constantly. Hope messages are arriving. Getting plenty co-operation. Thanks for your help."

6 a. m.—Radio traffic automatic signals have gone bad; everything else fine. BYRD."

7:22 a. m.—"Misty and rainy, all well."

9:30 a. m.—"Getting chilly flying at altitude of over one-half mile. All my shipmates doing their jobs like men. BYRD."

LANDS END, England, June 30.—A radio message from the liner France, intercepted here, says: "15:00 G. M. T. (9 a. m. St. Louis time). Latitude 50.06 north, longitude 7.57 west. Bearing of the plane 236 (southwest). Ship's course 270 (due west)."

(The position given by the France is west-northwest of Lands End and southeast of Cobb, formerly Queenstown, Ireland. The bearing of the plane given shows that Commander Byrd had passed below Ireland at the hour given and was heading for the coast of France.)

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 30.—Commander Byrd, in radio communication with the French liner Paris at 11 o'clock, Greenwich time, 5 a. m. St. Louis time, said: "We are 10,000 feet up in a freezing, dense fog. Position 11° Greenwich, Meridian time, 49.33 north latitude, 18.10 west longitude. Fine, thanks. You have helped us a lot."

The position gives him about 600 miles west of Land's End, England.

Bulletins on Byrd's Progress

By the Associated Press.

LE BOURGET, France, June 30.—A message from Commander Richard E. Byrd relayed by a British station here stated that the American aviator expected to reach Paris by 11 o'clock tonight. The message did not specify whether this was Greenwich or French time.

TORQUAY, England, June 30.—An intercepted wireless message from Commander Byrd to the signal station at Ushant (on an island off the French coast) reports that the plane distinctly heard. Plane bearing north about 50 miles, by radio direction finder. Plane invisible. Wind strong. Northwest; cloudy. No radio communication; the America cannot hear us."

The position given is about 850 miles due west of Land's End, England, and about 300 miles south of Commander Byrd's plotted course.

The approximate position of the America, as reported by the liner Berlin indicates Commander Byrd must have picked up speed during the night, and that at the time the signals were heard he had covered roughly 2300 miles in about 23 hours.

Mrs. Byrd Follows Flight Closely by Telephone From Boston Home.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 30.—Mrs. Richard E. Byrd said today that she was "tremendously thrilled" by the flight of the monoplane America and "supremely proud" that the crew had been able to overcome "the countless obstacles they encountered in their course."

Mrs. Byrd telephoned frequently today to Grover Whalen, representative of the plane's owner, from her home in Boston, and expressed great delight when she was told the plane was off the Irish coast.

Liquor Found in Bus Delays Trip.

BAXLEY, Ga., June 30.—Six women and seven men, residents of New York State, on their way home from Florida, had their journey interrupted here when Herman Ormond, driver of a cross-country bus in which they traveled, was arrested on a charge of liquor law violation. Police found 1029 quarts of liquor hidden in the car. Ormond admitted ownership.

MOTOR EXPERT SAYS BYRD WILL FLY BACK FROM PARIS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Commander Richard E. Byrd intends to fly the America back to the United States from Paris, according to T. Harold Kinkade, motor expert, who today is on his way to Cherbourg on the liner President Roosevelt.

Just before he sailed yesterday, Kinkade said: "One of the last things the commander said to me was: 'Get aboard the Roosevelt and meet me in Paris. I want you to get this plane ready for a trip back to the United States.'"

Commander Byrd himself has never publicly said he would fly back, although indications that he intends to do so have been apparent to his close followers.

MELLON OFF FOR TWO MONTHS CRUISE ON MEDITERRANEAN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, sailed on the Conte Biancamano today on a pleasure trip. He will be away for several months. His name was not on the passenger list. He was accompanied by his son, Paul. They will be met at Genoa by Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce, son-in-law and daughter of the secretary.

Mellon said he would not attend to any official business while abroad. The family will cruise the Mediterranean for two months on the Yacht Venia.

At the stroke of 8 the flying field was lighted up by searchlights and ground flood lights that showed every blade of grass on the field.

It began to rain about 8 o'clock and many of the spectators who had gathered outside the gate of the enclosure, being unable to obtain shelter, began drifting homeward.

At 8:30 o'clock it still was raining, discouraging the crowd on the fields and nearby roads, but members of Paris society began to gather at the big restaurant at the airport, some of them in evening clothes. Soon after 8:30 the restaurant was filled.

PARIS, June 30.—A Havas dispatch from St. Brieuc, on the northern coast of Brittany, west of St. Malo, says: "The 'America' passed here at 9:17 p. m."

(This dispatch shows that Commander Byrd veered slightly to the north after passing Brest. St. Brieuc is on the gulf of St. Malo, on the northern coast of Brittany, about 210 miles by airline from Paris.)

LE BOURGET, France, June 30.—Failure of radio stations to get in touch with Byrd's plane after its passage over Brest was explained by the fact that a "static storm" was raging over France, rendering even the simplest communications difficult.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 30.—The French Cable Co. announces that a plane identified as Commander Byrd's transatlantic "America" passed over Brest at 8:36 o'clock tonight, headed in the direction of Paris, about 320 miles away. The markings of the plane, the company stated, could be plainly seen.

(This would indicate that Byrd would arrive in Paris about 11 or 11:30 p. m., or 4 or 4:30 St. Louis time.)

A big crowd gathered in the Place President Wilson cheered wildly as the plane passed over. Radio loud speakers operated by the newspapers spread the news of the plane's passage throughout Brittany.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 30.—A wireless message broadcast from Commander Byrd's plane at 7:40 o'clock (evidently Irish local time) and picked up here said: "We are coming in tonight. Just passed over French border. Will any planes meet us outside Paris?"

Fashionable Crowd Gathers in Rain to Greet Flyers at Le Bourget

By the Associated Press.

LE BOURGET, France, June 30.—Hundreds of Parisians were on Le Bourget flying field or in cafes and restaurants in the vicinity of the field this evening hours before it was expected that the transatlantic plane America would appear out of the clouds.

The American's rapid flight, battling as it was fog and most difficult problems of navigation, caught most Parisians by surprise and the crowd was slow in gathering at the airport to greet him. Even those who had invitations to the exclusive enclosure counted on getting a good dinner before going out with the prospect of a tramping such as they received when Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed.

The big force of police and Republican guards that the authorities had provided to avoid any "mob incidents" such as occurred when Lindbergh came down from the clouds, discouraged many would-be witnesses who turned back home when they learned that they would not be allowed on the field.

The weather still was overcast at 7:30 o'clock tonight, but the visibility was fairly good and the experts said that the aviators would have no difficulty in finding the flying field or making the landing.

By 8 o'clock this evening, spectators began arriving in greater numbers and preparations were being actively made to receive the American aviators.

At the stroke of 8 the flying field was lighted up by searchlights and ground flood lights that showed every blade of grass on the field.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine, who created a new non-stop record in their flight from New York to Germany, arrived at the field to greet Commander Byrd and his companions.

The authorities at the field ordered flares sent up at regular intervals, beginning at 10:10 p. m.

Rodman Wanamaker II, nephew of Rodman Wanamaker, sponsor of Commander Byrd's flight, arrived at the flying field early this evening by plane from London to be on hand for the arrival of the America.

John Wanamaker, son of the sponsor of the flight, also made the trip plane with Rodman II.

EMERGENCY RATIONS FOR SIX WEEKS

Monoplane Can Be Kept Afloat 36 Hours by Releasing Oil From Great Storage Tanks.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—One of the most romantic and thrilling features of the flight of the America is the interest centered on the operation of the Jules Verne safety devices with which Commander Byrd confidently expects to outwit the Atlantic Ocean and the rest of nature in case of a forced landing at sea.

Of course that in itself is very improbable. Commander Byrd says the chances are 10 to one against it and the Commander is very conservative.

In the first place the America, unlike the "Spirit of St. Louis" or the Columbia, has no engines, while the others had only one. Should any one of the three go dead, which is not thought likely, the plane can still sail along on two. But that would not be necessary for very long.

Under the wing is an ingenious catwalk. On it either of the pilots can crawl out through a little opening as the ship ploughs through the air at 100 miles an hour. Around his waist will be a safety belt, such as window cleaners use, with two cords, which, as he crawls out, first, he snaps to a small wire rope stretched along the wing. Even if he should fall off the wing, he would only dangle in air from the wire until he could climb back. He works his way out to the motor, and, using both hands, replaces the spark plug, broken valve spring or makes whatever other repairs may be necessary. This done, he crawls back in the fuselage.

If All Go Dead.

But suppose the very improbable happens and all three motors go dead somewhere over the ocean. The plane is forced down on the waves. What then?

In the front cockpit are Bert Acosta and Lieut. Noville. In the rear cockpit, behind the main gas tank, is Commander Byrd. Lieut. Noville and Bert Balchen will take turns at the radio. At two-hour intervals Byrd has been sending messages telling of the progress of the flight and the plane's position. During the interim the radio has been automatically flashing the America's world call WTW, telling the world all is well. But the moment the ship begins its descent, Lieut. Noville turns on a different tune—SOS—SOS—SOS—the America's distress call to all ships 500 miles or more away.

As Acosta glides the plane to the water, Commander Byrd releases the dump valve of the main gas tank. Almost instantly—15 seconds—800 gallons of gasoline, weighing 480 pounds, are sprayed on the sea below. The valve automatically closes. When the ship settles on the water the tank acts as a buoy capable of supporting 650 pounds. The big wooden wing also helps the ship to float.

On top of the fuselage, behind the wing, is a third compartment where Noville and Acosta seek safety from the waves that nurl through the fabric. They sit there calmly and just wait.

Three Rubber Life Rafts.

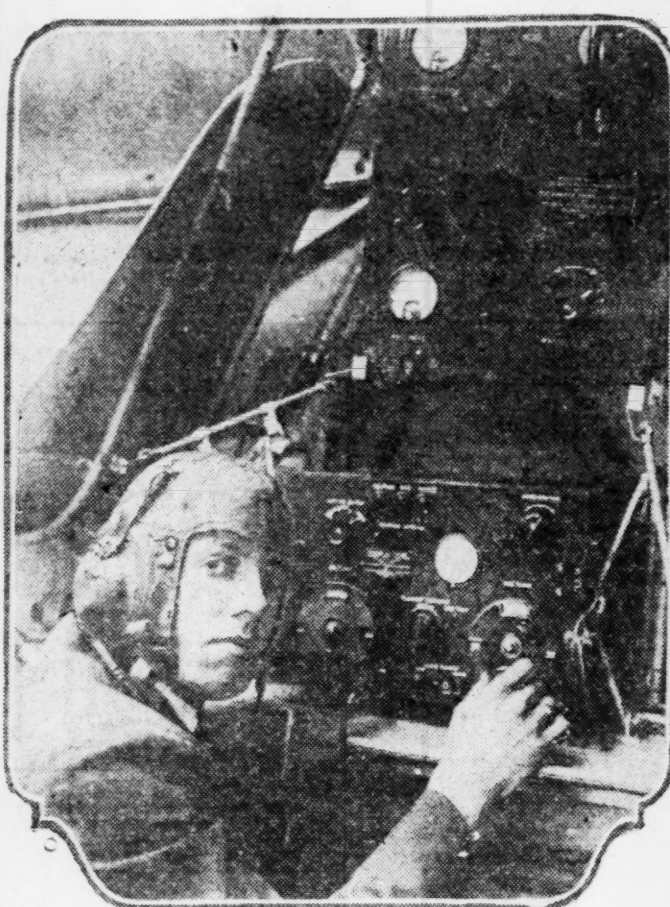

While all this has been going on—all a matter of but a few seconds—Commander Byrd has grabbed two small bundles from the tail of the ship. He also unpacked three containers of compressed air. The bundles, unwrapped in a jiffy, become rubber life rafts. In another jiffy when inflated with compressed air, up and down they bob beside the settling plane. In each raft are two small oars. Two flyers board each raft. A yank on the oars and they are off. No more than three minutes, in all, have passed.

Meantime from all directions ships are rushing to the stricken

America. The mere fact they no more hear WTW is in itself an SOS.

But the seafaring airmen have a few more tricks up their sleeves. Tucked away in one of the rafts is a small waterproof emergency radio set. It weighs but 10 pounds, and can operate even when completely submerged. It has a coil sending pushbutton and a sending radius of 20 to 40 miles. A bright colored six-foot collapsible kite supports the antenna. It also serves as sail for the raft and a position marker for rescue ships.

Stored in Commander Byrd's raft is a pistol for using rockets to signal ships looking for him. There are also a number of flares. For daytime signaling there are a number of smoke bombs. Normally, they are used to determine the drift of the wind. When dropped in the water they throw up a tremendous column of smoke that can be seen for miles.

Fishing Lines and Bait.

There is enough pemmican in the rafts to last six weeks—three half-gallon containers of distilled water, a couple of oranges and a lemon, a couple of large bars of chocolate. And each raft has a condenser, weighing just one and three-quarter ounces.

If by chance the have to drift for days, the men can use a bicycle pump, stored in each raft to keep it inflated. They should be able to keep afloat at least 30 days. If they grow tired of the pemmican diet, they can fish, for there are fishing lines and bait aboard.

And if the ship comes down in a storm, 60 gallons of oil in the great storage tanks will be released the minute the America hits the water, enough to keep the plane afloat at least 36 hours.

All of which is a great game—defying the Atlantic.

The statement was made by S. C. Lewis, indicted former president of the corporation, on June 20, last.

Flint and more than 50 others, including some of the most prominent bankers, brokers and business men of Southern California, now are under indictment for alleged participation in the pools on charges ranging from usury to embezzlement.

BYRD BESET WITH ALL THE PROBLEMS HE HOPED TO SOLVE

Dense Fog and Bad Winds, Making It Impossible to Navigate, Were Reported in Night.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Hampered by strong head winds and dense fog, the Paris-bound monoplane America with Commander Richard E. Byrd and his crew of three today roared over the North Atlantic in its flight to Paris. The plane left New York yesterday morning.

Two continents listened as the giant bird winged its way. While ships at sea and radio stations in North America received Lieut. George Noville's radio bulletins on the progress of the plane, Ireland heard the messages that indicated the advance of the adventurers.

After a day of constant fighting against adverse weather conditions Byrd and his companions had furthered their progress against the elements.

With the skill that carried him safely over the North Pole, Byrd charted his course against conflicting winds and mists. A message received early today from Commander Byrd said that due to fog and low clouds they had sighted neither land nor sea since 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Getting Scientific Data.

The course of the America, at least for the first half of its journey, was beset with all the navigation problems Byrd hoped to solve.

Less than eight hours after the takeoff Commander Byrd indicated the purposes of the flight were being achieved. "We think we are getting some scientific data," he said in a radio message picked up at Halifax.

From the time the America left Roosevelt Field at 5:24 o'clock, Eastern daylight time, yesterday morning, the world followed its progress through frequent bulletins broadcast from the craft.

Greetings were received at the hangar of the Transoceanic Co., sponsors of the flight, at Roosevelt Field, land stations and by many wireless operators. Then came the bulletin that told of the flight against fog and wind in the Northeastern Atlantic.

"Dense fogs cover all Newfoundland," the ship's message, received at 7:20 o'clock, said. "The S. S. Hamburg at 0830 G. M. T. (4:30 a. m. Eastern daylight time), latitude 4916, longitude 1439, has seen nothing but heard by direct communication from 230 degrees 'WTW' followed by dash. Probably Commander Byrd has clear night now. Wind north by northeast. Force 6. Cloudy and squally night. (Signed) MASTER."

The letters "WTW" are the call letters of the America.

Reports on weather conditions over the western half of the North Atlantic, received today by the Associated Press from Commander Byrd, showed that at least at sea level atmospheric conditions had been clear the last 24 hours.

The message made no mention of southwest of the Irish Coast, to be reported hearing the America's signals. The ship's message, received at 7:20 o'clock, said: "The S. S. Hamburg at 0830 G. M. T. BYRD'S INJURED EX-PILOT FOLLOWS FLIGHT BY RADIO Bennett, in Hospital, Receives Two Personal Messages From Ship; Shows Concern Over Freezing Fog.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Floyd Bennett, flying companion of Commander Byrd on his North Pole flight, unable to be in the air with his friend and chief, from a hospital room through the medium of the radio, today received reports of the progress of the flight.

Bennett received almost hourly messages from the ship. Her position at noon today would indicate Bennett said, that she was averaging about 90 miles an hour as she passed the coast of Ireland, somewhat south of her course.

Messages from Commander Byrd that he was up 10,000 feet in dense and freezing fog caused Bennett some concern.

"The plane cannot fly long at this altitude under the conditions reported," he said, "for she would become coated with ice and forced down to warmer temperature."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Out of the air, through which the America was steadily winging toward Europe, came messages yesterday to Floyd Bennett, who, but for an accident which occurred April 16 during a test flight of the ship, would have piloted the tri-motored Fokker monoplane on its flight to Paris. Bennett, recuperating from a fractured skull, internal injuries and a broken leg, sitting in a chair close to a radio next to his hospital bed in a room in St. Vincent's Hospital, listened with a happy smile while the announcer told of messages sent by Commander Byrd "for good old Floyd Bennett," stating "The America crew is thinking of you."

"Today is a red letter day for me," Bennett said, "though I am sitting here in a hospital chair while the plane speeds across the ocean. I'm glad the boys went without being kept in suspense by waiting until I was well enough to go along. And I know the flight will be successful."

"But I'm a little disappointed," he added whimsically, "well, a great deal disappointed that I didn't get to go along."

With keen interest he discussed the weight carried by the America and went into other technicalities concerning the mechanics of the ship.

Sitting in one corner of the room was Mrs. Cora L. Bennett, wife of the flyer, who recently recovered from a 10-weeks' illness at the Caledonia Hospital in Brooklyn. She, too, was fatigued with the strain of keeping up with the flight messages relayed by radio.

Although she has always known her husband "in aviation" she said, "there is always a horrible anxiety connected with any of his lengthy flights. We have been married nine years, and I am familiar with aviation, having piloted a plane myself, yet I can never do my worries when Floyd is in the air."

"As a wife, I am happy that Floyd did not go in the plane. But as one interested in aviation, I am sorry that my husband did not take part because of inability. In one of the greatest contributions to aviation."

NEW YORK, June 30.—Out of the air, through which the America was steadily winging toward Europe, came messages yesterday to Floyd Bennett, who, but for an accident which occurred April 16 during a test flight of the ship, would have piloted the tri-motored Fokker monoplane on its flight to Paris. Bennett, recuperating from a fractured skull, internal injuries and a broken leg, sitting in a chair close to a radio next to his hospital bed in a room in St. Vincent's Hospital, listened with a happy smile

while the announcer told of messages sent by Commander Byrd "for good old Floyd Bennett," stating "The America crew is thinking of you."

"Today is a red letter day for me," Bennett said, "though I am sitting here in a hospital chair while the plane speeds across the ocean. I'm glad the boys went without being kept in suspense by waiting until I was well enough to go along. And I know the flight will be successful."

"But I'm a little disappointed," he added whimsically, "well, a great deal disappointed that I didn't get to go along."

With keen interest he discussed the weight carried by the America and went into other technicalities concerning the mechanics of the ship.

Sitting in one corner of the room was Mrs. Cora L. Bennett, wife of the flyer, who recently recovered from a 10-weeks' illness at the Caledonia Hospital in Brooklyn. She, too, was fatigued with the strain of keeping up with the flight messages relayed by radio.

PLAQUE TO HONOR LINDBERGH UNVEILED WHILE LE BOURGET FIELD AWAIT'S BYRD'S PLANE

By the Associated Press.

LE BOURGET, France, June 30. LE HILE Commander Richard E. Byrd was winging to Paris through a dense Atlantic fog, and with Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine standing by in homage, a marble plaque commemorating Charles A. Lindbergh's feat of first reaching the European continent by air from the United States was dedicated today on the spot where the young American landed May 21.

The plaque was a simple slab engraved with the words: "Charles Lindbergh, after having crossed the Atlantic, landed here May 21, 1927." Under this inscription were the names of the two organizations which had the plaque placed at Le Bourget—the International League of Aviators and the "Vieux Tiers" or "Old Timers," as the French chapter of the league is known. Chamberlin and Levine had landed only a few minutes before the ceremony after a flight from Bern, Switzerland.

They were the first to apply trowels to the mortar that seals the slab in a solid block of concrete.

fogs which Commander Byrd reported prevented him from seeing land or sea. "It said: "Wednesday noon, 45.38 north, 36.22 west (about 800 miles east of Newfoundland) to Thursday noon, 42.57 north, 45.14 west (about 400 miles southeast of Newfoundland), splendid weather. Very light breeze from north to south with calms. Fine sea. Fine view. Barometer 30.47 to 30.53, temperature 60.5 to 61.3. This course covering 820 miles area giving good chance to American aviators to succeed."

Byrd Radios Congratulations to Honolulu Flyers.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 29.—Complying with a request from the America, Grover A. Whalen, vice president of the America Transoceanic Co., back-ers of the Byrd flight, today sent the following message to the army flyers who flew to Honolulu:

"Commander Byrd, U. S. N., commanding the America, while in flight to Paris, learned by radio of your own epochal accomplishment and has asked me to congratulate you by cable."

MINNEAPOLIS HAS MAXIMUM OF 94, Washington 96, and Phoenix, Ariz., 98.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Summer has struck the entire United States with a uniformity of humid heat that was as great on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts as it was in the Middle West and South.

Phoenix, Ariz., as is frequently the case, was the hottest spot with a reading of 98 degrees. St. Louis, Ind., however, had 97 degrees. Rapid City, S. D., was one of the comparatively cool spots with a temperature of 86. Minneapolis, the same general temperature but was eight degrees warmer.

Washington was the hot spot of the East with 96 degrees for yesterday's maximum, while Boston was comfortably cool with thermometer readings at no time exceeding 60.

On the Pacific Coast the temperature highs ranged from 83 at Seattle to 94 at Fresno, with San Francisco another warm place with 90 degrees. Out through the Iowa-Illinois-Nebraska grain belt the readings went up to 94 in places.

Chicago sweltered at 94, and seven deaths during the day and night were ascribed to the heat. The city's beaches were thronged during the day.

Grace Methodist Episcopal Church was opened to refugees from the heat today. The thick walls of the church were said to provide such thorough insulation that the temperature inside was 20 degrees cooler than outside.

Chicago's temperature at 8 a. m. was 84 degrees as against a starting reading of 80 yesterday.

CHARGES POLITICS DOMINATES DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

SAYS LIQUOR SALE CAN BE CONTROLLED

Describes Meeting of Treasury Officials With Politician—Denies He Used Torture Methods.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Political patronage and not personal efficiency is the keynote in holding a job as prohibition administrator, Maj. Chester P. Mills, who resigned last week as Federal Prohibition Administrator here, declared today in a formal statement.

At the time he characterized the service as diluted with political patronage, Mills was describing a conference at Washington in February. The conference, he said, was attended by "high Treasury officials and a political leader of New York." Mills told of being introduced as the "most efficient administrator in the United States."

The reply was, he said, "We won't question his efficiency, but let's talk patronage."

Names of those attending the conference were not divulged.

At the time he accepted the post as Federal administrator, Mills said, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury assured him there would be no political influence. The assurances did not relieve him of the problem of coping with political leaders "who look upon the Prohibition Bureau solely from the standpoint of political favor and patronage," he said.

"I have in mind the displeasure of certain political groups by not according to all their requests, which I could not do and still administer the law," he added.

Act That Brought Disfavor.

"Last fall," he said, "I had occasion to dismiss for various causes some 12 or 14 agents. It so happened that five or six of these men were political district captains, and since that time there has been no let up in the efforts of certain politicians to have me transferred."

Referring to the alleged "Chinese torture methods" used by his assistant, Maj. August Heise, now under suspension in procuring a statement from Albert Briggs, an East Indian, Mills said:

"Last week an associate of a convicted criminal testified that he had been kicked, beaten and physically mistreated by one of my assistants. It was not so, but without investigation or inquiry my assistant was suspended and I was transferred to the post of zone supervisor."

Mills gave a lengthy account of his work as administrator, saying he had put out of business the rabbinical saloon, where sacramental wine, he said, was sold indiscriminately, had eliminated bootlegging, manufacturing beer of illegal alcoholic content, and in the last six months had seized 1054 commercial stills.

Opposes Undercover Men.

He asserted that the common wisdom of 16 months as administrator. Mills concluded, "I am convinced that with decent administration, free from political influence, the sources of liquor supply in the United States can be controlled by the Federal Government."

Talk of Political Influence Non-sense, Statement at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Charges that appointments to the prohibition force were controlled by politics rather than efficiency were characterized by Commissioner Doran today as "sheer nonsense." The commissioner asserted that politics had nothing to do with Chester P. Mills' removal.

"Any statement that politics entered into Mills' transfer is not true," Doran continued. "Politics had nothing to do with it. I am not a politician. Mills' transfer was made for the good of the service, and only for the good of the service."

The commissioner said he was certain third degree methods were used in New York before he ordered suspension of August Heise and indicated that Heise would be dismissed.

Assistant Secretary Andrews, who had resigned, effective Aug. 1, declared today he knew of no such meeting as that which the New York administrator said took place last February or of a statement that political patronage and not efficiency governed appointments.

Doran described Mills' transfer as "a disciplinary measure" for his failure to act in the Heise matter.

thousand dollar bills

IF you had twenty-four million thousand-dollar bills, you could place them end to end, and make them reach from New York to the Rocky Mountains—and still have a good big stack of them left. They'd stretch out to a distance of something like 2762 miles!

Yes, 24 million thousand-dollar bills is a huge amount of money. It's $24,000,000,000!

But it's not an impossibly huge sum. American citizens have more than that saved up. There are actually more than 24 billions of dollars in Savings Accounts deposited with National Banks, State Banks and Trust Companies.

All that money was saved by people like yourself—people with average incomes. Just shows what thrift can do!

St. Louis Debutante Wants to Be Aviator

MISS MARIAN GREEN.

Miss Marian Green Plans to Take Up Flying Professionally Either Here or in San Diego, Cal.

St. Louis is about to gain a debutante in professional aviation, who last year made her debut in the St. Louis society—Miss Marian Green of 12 Kingsbury place, who has added 15 hours' flying at Lambert-St. Louis Field to her Vassar education and is looking for a job. If she doesn't find it, St. Louis will neither gain an aviatrix nor keep a society girl, for Miss Green plans in that event to go to California late in the summer, after piling up about 50 hours' flying to her credit.

Rather close association with the Ryan-built "Spirit of St. Louis" in the last few days has interested Miss Green in visiting the Ryan Airlines at San Diego. She is informed that the training field there is attractive, and that there is enhanced by the sufficiently demonstrated intent of the Ryan concern to advance aviation in general and, she hears, women flyers in particular.

Long Interested in Flying. "Aviation always has been a hobby of mine," Miss Green said yesterday, while she waited in neatly tailored flying clothes for her turn at the stick of the training plane. "I've driven an auto since I was tall enough to peer through a steering wheel, and I've been making flights in planes as a passenger for years."

"I used to go up with Maj. Robertson when he was carrying passengers at the field in Forest Park in 1920. Then I went East to school, and used to ride often at Mineola, L. I., for I had an uncle in Navy aviation. At Miami in 1924 I had my only accident when the motor of a seaplane cut off at about 200 feet."

"And I had been having the best time, just before it happened. This was right off the causeway."

BEER-BY-GLASS ISSUE LEADS BY 8000 IN MANITOBA

Vote From Rural Districts Favoring Bottle Sale Likely to End Change Result.

By the Associated Press. WINNIPEG, Man., June 30.—Manitoba electors who are in favor of the sale of beer by the glass in licensed premises under Government control, today maintained a lead of more than 8000 over those favoring the sale of beer by the bottle under the "cash and carry" system.

The lead was held with virtually half of the country polls reported in yesterday's election. The districts to be heard from are small ones and it is considered unlikely that the present majority in favor of the change in the regulations of the liquor commission will be overcome.

HEARS MOTION TO RELEASE UNION HOME BUILDERS

Judge Hall Takes Under Advice—Matters State's Proposal to End Receivership.

Circuit Judge Hall today took under advisement a motion of attorneys representing State Finance Commissioner Cantley, that the receivership of the Union Home Builders be terminated and the assets turned back to trustees of the organization. Cantley specified in his proposal that $75,000 be taken from the assets, valued at $1,000,000, to insure payment in full to contract holders of the firm in Missouri and to pay the costs of litigation.

Attorneys representing contract holders living outside the State took exception to this provision on the ground that Missouri contract holders would have preference. About $41,000 of the $75,000 would be used to pay Missouri stockholders, who represent only 4 per cent of the total number of contract holders in the firm. It was estimated. The remainder of the sum would be sufficient to pay attorney's fees and court costs, Judge Hall was told.

MISS MACKAYE CONVICTED, FACES TERM IN PRISON

Actress Found Guilty of Hiding Facts in Husband's Death Declares Verdict Was a "Mistake."

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, June 30.—Dorothy Mackaye, actress, was cast in a life tragedy today as, costumed in the drab blue denim of the jail uniform, she sat in her cell awaiting sentence for compounding a felony. She was convicted yesterday of attempting to conceal facts in the death of her actor husband, Ray Raymond.

Sentence will be passed upon the actress Saturday. The court has the choice of giving her an indeterminate sentence of from one to three years at San Quentin penitentiary, where her avowed lover, Paul Kelly, is to serve one to 10 years as a result of his last fight with Raymond, or six months' imprisonment in the county jail. The acting ability of Miss Mackaye was tested as she waited in the courtroom for the verdict of the jury of eight women and four men. She had indicated her acquittal when two alternate jurors who had sat in the case assured her they would have decided in her favor had they been called upon to ballot on her fate. Soon afterward jurors questioned regarding circumstantial evidence furnished her of her impending conviction.

Little Outward Emotion. The actress showed the degree of guilt with little outward display of emotion, except for the convulsive twitching of her face. As court adjourned Miss Mackaye threw herself into the arms of her friend, Miss Helen Wilkinson, who had been weeping from the moment the jurors appeared.

Composure returned to the actress and she was able to greet reporters in her cell with a smile. "How do you like my little dress," she asked, as she stood up to display the coarse denim gown worn by women prisoners. She called her conviction "a mistake" but declared she "would make the best of it."

Kelly Expresses Sorrow. In a cell in another part of the jail, Kelly expressed his sorrow over the conviction of the woman for whom he has repeatedly declared his love.

The charge upon which Miss Mackaye was convicted was one of two against her at the opening of the trial, a count that, if successful after the fact, was dismissed by order of the court.

Dr. W. J. Sullivan, with whom Miss Mackaye was accused of having conspired to conceal certain facts in her husband's death, although indicted with her, is due to come before the court the latter part of next month.

ONE KILLED, MANY INJURED IN PITTSBURG, PA., EXPLOSION

Blast in New Newspaper Building in Downtown Section Attributed to Gasoline.

By the Associated Press. PITTSBURG, Pa., June 30.—One man was fatally hurt and a large number of persons were injured today by an explosion in the new Pittsburgh Press building in the downtown section.

A gasoline storage tank in the engine room was being filled and authorities believe that the explosion occurred when the tank overflowed.

Many windows in the big structure, which fronts on the Boulevard of the Allies, were shattered by the blast. Persons in automobiles nearby were cut by flying glass, and several pedestrians were reported to have been blown across the street. Within a short time after the explosion all downtown fire companies were at the scene.

Firemen, after sending five persons to a hospital, went into the engine room, where they found two men badly hurt. One of these, Glenn Day, an engineer, died on the way to the hospital.

SACCO-VANZETTI ADVISORY BODY BEGINS ITS WORK

Men Named by Gov. Fuller to Weigh Evidence Pertaining to Accused Radicals Meet for First Time.

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, June 30.—Members of the Sacco-Vanzetti Advisory Committee, appointed by Gov. Fuller to assist him in his investigation of the case of the two radicals under sentence to be executed for murder, met at the State House today for the first time. The committee consists of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Robert Grant, formerly Judge of the Probate Court.

The committee got together in the rooms of the Executive Council, which yesterday approved the action of Gov. Fuller in granting a respite from the week of July 19 to that of Aug. 19 for Sacco and Vanzetti. Previously, each of the three had conferred several times with the Governor and had examined the record of the case individually, but had not gone over it together.

To Mrs. Stella White, Negro, of Baton Rouge, La., who had written the "Doctor" complaining she was unable to "gumulate" anything, Pearse replied: "This is a very serious case. The charge will be $150. I will accept $5 besides the one you sent and will start on your case."

Ned Selnure of Pine Bluff, Ark., appealed to "Doctor" Pearse to put him on the road to success. He was informed by mail that "that he needed the Solomon wisdom stone, which cost $500 up. For $100 the doctor would begin his case."

Postoffice inspectors seized more than 100 letters of the sort with copies of Pearse's replies. Most of them came from southern states where Negroes in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Hawaiian Islands were on his "sucker list." He admitted to Government agents that he collected from $8 to $500 from each customer. He says he is a native of Nigeria, West Africa, and came to the United States in 1920 from Hamburg, Germany. He first "practiced" in New York and then in Detroit, coming to St. Louis in September, 1925.

Since his arrest several weeks ago "Doctor" Pearse has been in the City Jail, unable to furnish bond and he has a black cat's wishbone in his pocket.

'Voodoo' Doctor Indicted For Selling Luck Charms

'Dr.' Samuel Kojoe Pearse Did Thriving Business in Magic 'Tokens' to Negroes in Many States.

"Doctor" Samuel Kojoe Pearse, a Negro, who postoffice inspectors say has victimized hundreds of ignorant Negroes in many states by selling them "voodoo" charms by mail, today was indicted by the Federal grand jury for using the mails to defraud.

Appearing as the West African Remedy Co., the Pearse Health Institute, the Oriental Institute of Science and the African-American Institute of Science, "Doctor" Pearse did a thriving business from his home, 2824 Lawton boulevard. His stock in trade is itemized in the indictment as follows:

"Tie-em-down Powder," "guaranteed to keep your husband at home, except in aggravated cases," Price $25 for 25 powders.

"Bring-back Powder," "to be used in serious cases where husband fails to respond to Tie-em-down Powder," Price $50 for 25 powders.

"Black Cat's Wishbone," "warranted to bring luck in business or love, horse racing or craps games."

"King Solomon's Wisdom Stone," very valuable and charged with invisible life."

BRITON WHO HANDLED MILLIONS KILLS SELF

James White, Financier, Sportsman and Theatrical Magnate, Takes Chloroform.

Copyright, 1927, by the Post and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World) and Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 30.—James White, race horse owner, theatrical promoter and financier, who handled deals involving millions of dollars through a career which started when he was messenger boy at $1 a week, has killed himself with chloroform.

News of his death brought a drop of 50 per cent in the price of shares of stock in some of the companies in which he had large interests. The full effect of his suicide probably will come today when it becomes more generally known that heavy financial losses caused him to take his life.

White was found dead in his bed yesterday by his housekeeper. He was to have had papers yesterday on behalf of the Beecham Trust, selling the Weekly Star for a price running into millions of dollars.

Few figures were better known in financial and sporting circles than Mr. White. He maintained an expensive racing establishment, backed theaters and was noted for his wide and daring financial operations. After his time as messenger boy, he was a bricklayer and proprietor of a country circus.

GOVERNMENT PREPARES TO SUE LEVINE FOR $500,000

Claims That Sum Due From Transatlantic Flyer on War Salvage Contract.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 30.—A conference between Department of Justice officials and counsel for Charles A. Levine, who made the New York-Germany flight, has been set for July 10 to consider war contracts held by the salvage company which Levine headed.

Government attorneys are preparing a civil suit against Levine to recover approximately $500,000 which it is contended is its share in profits on sales of war materials by the salvage company. An arrangement whereby the Government was to share in these profits did not result satisfactorily. Department of Justice officials said.

13 PLANES ON RELIABILITY TOUR REACH NEW YORK

Land at Curtiss Field After 2-Hour Flight From Boston With Favoring Wind.

By the Associated Press. CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., June 30.—Twelve of the 14 planes in the national air tour reached Curtiss Field at 1 o'clock today, making the hop from Boston in two hours with a favoring wind.

The thirteenth plane landed a little after 1 o'clock, leaving only one plane yet to arrive, that of Louis Meister, piloting the Buhl. Tomorrow the tour is to proceed to Philadelphia for luncheon, passing the evening in Baltimore.

BOSTON, June 30.—The planes in the third annual National Air Reliability Tour started today on another leg of their flight from Detroit, which was to carry them from the East Boston airport to New York. The Eagle Rock plane, piloted by C. P. Clevenger, which landed in Holden yesterday and flew on to Boston this morning, was the first to take the air. The Ryan entry, Capt. Frank M. Hawks, which flew here this morning from Athol, where it landed last night, was the second to get away. Others followed at short intervals.

A leak in the gas line of the Waco, piloted by E. W. Cleveland, held up that machine after the others had taken to the air. Repairs were started at once with the expectation the plane would be able to hop off within a short time.

The trouble developed again soon after the Waco took to the air and Cleveland turned the plane about and returned to the Boston field, where mechanics again went to work on the machine.

The Buhl Alredson, piloted by Louis G. Meister, which took off from Gardner, Mass., this forenoon, had not shown up at the Boston field when the others set out.

One air passenger on the tour, William B. Hall, of Detroit, found himself apparently without a plane when the Buhl Alredson which set out from Gardner this morning failed to show up at the Boston field during the forenoon. Hall rode from Detroit aboard the Buhl until it was forced to land last night because of fog.

Then he came to Boston by train, expecting to go aboard her today and fly on to New York. When no word of the whereabouts of the machine was received, it was decided the plane had headed directly for New York.

The leak in the gas line of Cleveland's plane was repaired shortly after noon and the machine took off immediately for New York.

The storm-scattered ships of the tour had the most exciting day thus far in their 4000-mile jaunt from Detroit yesterday.

Five planes failed to complete the run from Schenectady, N. Y., yesterday, which was made perilous by fog. They made safe landings, however, in farm yards and elsewhere at points from 50 to 70 miles west of Boston. Their passengers were sent here by train last night and the pilots hoped to be able to hop off today, either for Boston or New York.

Eleven Reach Boston. Four of these planes were officially connected with the tour and active contestants for the Edsel Ford trophy, and $20,000 in prizes, while the fifth, a Pitcairn machine carrying the manager, Ray Cooper, was not.

At the East Boston airport 11 other aircraft had made safe landings, but without a full measure of adventure that had its unpleasant moments.

Ten of these were in the contest, while the eleventh was the pathfinding plane. They descended from all points of the compass, dropping out of a cloud and rain-swept sky to find warm welcome from a crowd which stuck despite the inclement weather.

Passed City in Storm. The first one to streak through the mist ceiling was a Waco ship piloted by John P. Wood, which had left Schenectady in sixth place shortly after 3:20 o'clock in the afternoon. It arrived here at 4:46.

One of the planes had started out to sea before it discovered it had passed the city, another wandered up the north shore in search of bearings, while the last to arrive, a Hamilton metalplane, made port at 7:18, after the most adventurous trip of all.

A forced landing during the storm, "somewhere in Massachusetts," was occasioned by a minor mechanical mishap. The ship rose again, but went so far off its course that when the pilot brought it down to refuel he discovered he was at Newport, R. I., 60 miles southeast of here.

All Landed Safely. All of the machines which made forced landings did so safely, and there was but one serious accident of the day. The huge tail-mounted Ford transport, carrying eight persons, cracked a cylinder in her nose motor, and was forced to complete the trip on the remaining two.

Three of the planes which landed in Worcester County last night rejoined the others here this morning. Paul Riddle piloted his Waco plane here from Westminster; Capt. Frank M. Hawks arrived from Athol in his Ryan monoplane and C. P. Clevenger brought his Eagle Rock plane from Holden.

BALCHEN FAMED AS BAD WEATHER FLYER

Relief Pilot on Byrd's Plane Carried Emergency Supplies to Isolated Canadian Villages.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, June 30.—Although he has been in this country only about a year, having been brought over from Spitzbergen by Commander Byrd, when the latter returned from his successful flight over the North Pole, Ernst Balchen has earned a national reputation as one of the most skillful pilots of heavy airplanes. He is relief pilot in the monoplane American now flying to Paris.

His first met Commander Byrd at Kings Bay, when he was on leave from the Norwegian navy and helping in the preparations for the Amundsen-Elsworth expedition in the Norge to the North Pole. Byrd and his co-pilot, Floyd Bennett, were experiencing difficulties in getting their heavily loaded ship off the ground, and it was Balchen who first suggested substituting skis for wheels and then helped them in making the changes.

Commander Byrd often has said that without the assistance of the young Norwegian his expedition to the North Pole might never have succeeded. Commander Byrd would have taken Balchen to the Pole were it not that Balchen was not an American citizen. Balchen has now resigned his Norwegian lieutenantcy and applied for American citizenship.

His Air Career.
Balchen will be 33 years old next October. He was born at Tvedt, Hopedale, Norway, the son of a surgeon. After attending public school he entered the army at 18 and served two years. In 1920 he was sent to the Norwegian Naval Academy at Horten, and specialized in engineering, surveying and aviation. Commissioned a Lieutenant in 1924, he was put in charge a year later, of one of the three parties sent in search of Amundsen and Elsworth, and he remained in the Arctic until they were found.

Coming to America at the request of Commander Byrd, Balchen flew the Josephine Ford in a tour all over the country. His great ability to handle heavy ships and to fly them in all sorts of weather, especially in fog, was illustrated on that tour and at its close he accepted a position as engineer and test pilot with the Atlantic Aircraft Co., the American plant of Anthony Fokker, at Peterboro, N. J.

Last winter he was picked from a score of flyers as the one best qualified for dangerous flying in Northern Canada. He flew from Fort Churchill, Hudson Bay, to isolated mining camps and Indian villages where landing fields are unknown, flying in all more than 1000 miles in severe weather.

He carried many thousands of pounds of ammunition, dynamite, medicines and other material in a few weeks to points where they were needed, making journeys in a day or two that would have taken men and dogs months.

Balchen returned to the United States last March and at once went to work on plans for the Byrd expedition to France. Following the injury to Floyd Bennett, it was thought he would be chosen as pilot, but again his lack of citizenship stood in the way. Several days ago he applied for and obtained naturalization papers.

When the expedition was being organized, Clarence D. Chamberlin asked Balchen to be his navigator. After Lloyd Berntson's dismissal he was offered large inducements to accept the place. But although he wanted to accept the offer and had Commander Byrd's permission to go, he refused, preferring to remain with Byrd. Chamberlin, however, received a great deal of help from Balchen, who plotted the course for him.

Balchen's particular interest, like Commander Byrd's, lies in Arctic and Antarctic exploration. He already has been selected by Commander Byrd as one of the four or five navigators to accompany him on his expedition next year to the South Pole.

Balchen is not married. When he was about 10 his father died. He has two sisters, Marie, 27, and Dagmar, 24. His mother, Mrs. A. Albert, is living at Oslo.

WITNESS IS GIVEN FREEDOM
Former Policeman Gets Liberty for Turning State's Evidence.

Because he helped the State in prosecuting former companions on two robbery charges, the same charges against Martin O. G. Whetzel, former policeman, were dismissed yesterday.

Whetzel agreed to testify against Elmer Henkel and James Walsh for the robberies of the Liberty Music Hall and of a jewelry store at 5350 Easton avenue. Upon learning this, the two pled guilty and were sentenced five years in the penitentiary on each charge to run concurrently. A third man, William Rickert, was implicated in the Liberty Music Hall robbery, going to trial with Whetzel, testifying against him. He was convicted and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

STATE WILL NAME NEW DEFENDANTS IN ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Three Kindred Groups, Not Specified to Be Included in Ouster Action Against Plumbers.

Pleadings in the State's anti-trust suit to oust 19 corporate members of the Master Plumbers' Association of St. Louis from business in Missouri are to be amended to include as defendants the corporate members of three kindred organizations, Assistant Attorney-General James announced here today.

Only corporations can be sued under the anti-trust law. Neither the plumbers' body nor the other associations it is proposed to involve are themselves incorporated. James would not make public in advance the names of the three new groups drawn into the case. He said, however, that his amended pleadings would mention as parties to the alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade, two labor unions—Journeyman Plumbers' Association, local No. 55, and Association of Journeymen Steamfitters & Helpers, local No. 562. These are not incorporated.

James will go to Jefferson City to amend his suit. In the Supreme Court of Missouri, after consultation with Attorney-General Gentry. The plumbers' ouster suit was filed on the basis of information gathered and published by the Post-Dispatch.

Three defendants are the American Radiator Co., United States Radiator Corporation and N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co. The State's object in naming the new defendants will be to amplify its case in general.

Says Bids Were Dictated.
Presentation of evidence in the suit against the plumbers was resumed before Special Commissioner James T. Blair here yesterday. At this time the first witness regarded by the lawyers as unfriendly to the defense was heard.

He is Myles E. McDonald, conducting the McDonald Plumbing & Heating Co., at 4459 Olive street. For the last few days he has been guarded by the police, because of an overheard conversation threatening his life, but he has been unable to explain why he should have been menaced. He was a member of the association in 1917 and 1918, but left it the next year.

Counsel for the State questioned him about the association's Estimating Committee, comprising all the members and conducted by Secretary Eugene Blake. The committee, he declared, told members whether they might make estimates, or bids, on particular projects and granted or withheld permission to do so. Bids were sent to the committee by those invited. McDonald continued, and the low man got the job. It was Blake, the witness declared, who selected the bidders, opened the bids and announced the successful contractor, and the owner of the building involved was not present when this took place.

Cites Personal Experience.
The dictation of the Estimating Committee extended to telling members to withdraw bids. McDonald asserted, saying he had been ordered by Blake to withdraw a bid on some work in the Chemical Building, in 1918, because the bid had not gone through the committee, and the work went to another plumber.

Questioning next entered the matter of the agreement formerly existing between the association and the Journeymen Plumbers' Union, whereby, the State avers, the masters agreed to hire only union men and the journeymen agreed to work only for the masters. McDonald said he had been unable to employ union men because of this until a few months ago, when the agreement between the union and the masters was terminated.

He lost a job on a public school at Kingshighway and Pirose street, McDonald declared, because he did not bid through the committee. Building Commissioner Milligan of the Board of Education informed him, he related, that he would not get this nor any other school work because a committee of the Master Plumbers' Association had complained to the board about him. The State was not permitted to offer testimony to show the board had agreed to hire only plumbers recognized by the association.

His business had been injured by the opposition of the association, McDonald asserted. He said Blake at one time told him not to bid on some Arcade Building work because it was destined for some one else.

Hampered in Getting Supplies.
Beginning about two months ago, McDonald said he had had trouble obtaining supplies from various houses, mentioning the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co., the Crane Co. and the Journeymen Nelson, he said, used to give him credit of 30 to 60 days, but now demands cash in advance. Counsel for Nelson, in cross-examination, asked McDonald about numerous suits, "apparently seeking to question his credit, but the witness declared he was either plaintiff in these cases or was sued because he was the offended party and had withheld settlement of accounts.

Otto Moose, who conducts a plumbing shop at 716 Lawrence street, and has never been a member of the association, having been a journeyman till he went into business for himself in 1921, testified he understood the agreement mentioned between the association and the union, and that the union had notified him its members would not work for him because he was unfair, since he did not join the association. "The effect of my membership on his business," he said, was that he couldn't go in the case on mark. "I work and was never invited to bid on big projects because all building associations were affiliated with the master plumbers and 'I was an outsider.'"

Tells of a Reprimand.
W. E. Nichols of 3065 Eads avenue explained why he had left the association in February, 1923. At that time, he related, he was doing a $50 job at 4744 McPherson avenue for a customer of 10 years' standing, and he thought it was too insignificant to handle through the Estimating Committee. President Collins of the association, reprimanded him for this, Nichols said, so he resigned. He would not admit, on the witness stand, that he had been fined for this incident. Counsel for the State told a Post-Dispatch reporter Nichols had said to them he was fined $100. Collins had testified at a previous hearing that there had been reprimands but no fines while he was in office.

One of the grounds of the anti-trust suit is the so-called "kitty" into which all members getting contracts pay 2 per cent of the contract prices. From this the expenses of the association are paid and periodic refunds to all members who have submitted bids are made of the surplus. Nichols said he had received about six refunds and $70 was about the largest of these.

Minutes of the Estimating Committee for 1925 were produced at the hearing by Blake, in response to a subpoena. They show that several members were reprimanded for failure to abide by the rule of submitting bids to the committee.

H. J. Pettigill Quits Telephone Company.
The resignation of H. J. Pettigill, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for the past eight years, becomes effective tomorrow. His resignation was tendered and accepted at the June meeting of the board. He has been connected with the telephone company since 1912.

TO BEGIN DRAFT OF NEW TAX BILL OCT. 31

House Committee Probably Will Recommend Some Reduction, Chairman Green Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The House Ways and Means Committee will meet Oct. 31 to begin the draft of a new tax bill, Chairman Green announced today.

He said he did not expect a special session of Congress.

The joint committee on internal revenue taxation is expected to meet prior to the convening of the committee to go over its recommendations for the enforcement of tax legislation.

"There is no way of determining at this time to what extent taxes may be reduced," Green said in a statement. "It is, however, likely that some reduction can be made and by the time the committee meets the amount probably can be estimated with a reasonable degree of accuracy. Much will depend on business conditions and whether Congress is likely to find it necessary to make any appropriations for matters that have not so far been considered."

"I am not expecting an extra session, but if there is one it is not likely to make much change in the plan for committee work."

WATCHMAN SUSPENDED AFTER BEATING MAN IN SALOON

Richard Coblin Says Attack Was Unwarranted—Guard Asserts He Was Insulted.

When Private Watchman Oscar Wood, 48 years old, of 2345 Ohio avenue, entered a saloon at 2916 Oregon avenue last night in making his rounds, Richard Coblin cursed him and when Wood remonstrated picked up a stem and hurled it at him. Wood then used his night stick to subdue him, according to his report.

Coblin, who is 44, a salesman, of 2912 Arsenal street, told police a different story. He said Wood approached him from the rear and without provocation struck him with the stick. The case came to the attention of police when Coblin applied at city hospital yesterday for treatment. He was arrested. Wood was suspended and will be asked to appear before the Board of Police Commissioners.

MAN CAPTURED BY WOMAN WITH PISTOL ADMITS CHECK FRAUD

Accomplice Arrested Later Also Confesses $17,400 Forgery on Store Owner.

Joe de Rousse, a painter, of 216 South Fourth street, East St. Louis, captured at the point of a pistol Tuesday night by Mrs. Annie Wierciszewski, a widow, of 1432 N. Central avenue, and Harvey Keller, 3149 Tudor avenue, East St. Louis, have confessed having forged several checks. East St. Louis police reported today.

The prisoners, with a third man still at large, were identified as the men who had passed two forged checks for $20.80 and $16.80 on Mrs. Wierciszewski, who keeps a small store. When the same two entered her store Tuesday night and requested a check for $27.80 she drew a revolver and ordered one of her six children to call the police.

She succeeded in holding De Rousse until help arrived, but Keller and the third man ran out the door and escaped. Detectives later arrested Keller.

3 MOVIE MEN DROWNED IN "SHOOTING" RAPIDS FOR FILM

Lose Lives in Alaska Current in Attempt to Rescue Stunt Performers.

By the Associated Press.
CORDOVA, Alaska, June 30.—Ray Thompson, 22 years old, Los Angeles stunt man; Joseph Bautin, 24, Juneau, and F. H. Daughters, 22, Spokane, lost their lives yesterday in the rapids of the Copper River in Abernethy Canyon, 50 miles from Cordova, while filming "The Trail of '98" for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Location Co.

Bautin lost his life trying to save Daughters and Thompson who were in a boat with Gordon Craveth and Tom Granville, stunt men, shooting the rapids as in Alaskan gold rush days. Craveth and Thompson jumped into the river. Craveth swam the strong current and landed safely, but Thompson was lost. Daughters fell out of a lifeboat and was swept away. Only Bautin's body was recovered. Granville landed the boat single-handed.

ENGINEERS LEVY $7,200,000 ASSESSMENT FOR THEIR BANKS

Brotherhood to Turn Management of Its Business Enterprises Over to a Committee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
CLEVELAND, O., June 30.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will collect $7,200,000 from its members to protect its banking and other business enterprises. The assessment, the largest ever levied by a labor union or fraternal organization—the Brotherhood is both—will be $5 a month for 24 months. Of the membership of 88,000 including the superannuated and pensioned, it is estimated 60,000 will pay it.

It is proposed to turn over to a board of trustees, yet to be selected, the proceeds of this assessment. They will take over and manage all the business enterprises of the Brotherhood. The statement that such a board will be formed, and the Brotherhood, in effect, get out of business, was authorized by a special committee to inquire into the financial affairs of the association. This obviates the necessity of turning these things over to any outside group, such as the Mitten interests of Philadelphia.

HUERTA INDICTED WITH NINE OTHERS ON NEUTRALITY CHARGE

Accused of Attempting to Smuggle Arms Across U. S. Border Into Mexico.

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—Adolfo de la Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, and nine others have been indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of conspiring to violate United States neutrality laws by attempting to smuggle arms and munitions across the border.

Several of the defendants, including De la Huerta, recently were arrested on warrants in Tucson, Ariz., and already are under bond. In addition to De la Huerta, those named in the indictments include Lou Gayo, secretary to De la Huerta; Manuel Espinosa, L. G. Leitch, John Gallegos, Alfonso Gomez Morentin, Francisco Ferriz, Enrique Breceda, J. Rosa Boles and Frank Thayer.

Every Woman Has Natural Beauty

Peter Pan Brings Out the Hidden Color Tones
The beauty of complexion that is yours by right can be realized at once through this new Beauty Powder, made on a new principle, through scientific methods.

Nature builds into the texture of every human skin a rainbow of many hidden color-tones. Opal Hues, used only in Peter Pan Beauty Powder, are invisible, microscopic color-dots that match in concealed radiance the brilliant hidden colors that Nature has supplied at birth.

Thus each of the four shades of Peter Pan Beauty Powder (natural, rachel, rose, white) contains the exact allotment of Opal Hues, in correct proportions, to reproduce Nature's own vividness in each type of complexion.

Peter Pan, simply enhancing Nature, appears equally flattering under glaring noonday sun as under the mellow lamps of evening drawing rooms. No other Beauty Powder, or face powder, can be like Peter Pan, for none other contains the magic Opal Hues.

The exquisite Peter Pan three-dollar Satin Jewel Case has long been familiar. But now, due to insistent popular demand and aided by large production, the manufacturer has placed upon the market the Peter Pan Debutante Skin. Most leading department and drug stores sell it at one dollar.

Or, if you first prefer a trial size, send ten cents in stamps or coin for Peter Pan Petite (mentioned above) to FALLIS, INC., 3926 Riverside drive, Cincinnati, O.

GENTRY TO MAKE DECISION ON GAS SUIT BY MONDAY

Quo Warranto Case Can Be Filed in Supreme Court Only by His Consent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 29.—Attorney-General Gentry today said he would reach a decision by Monday on the request of Mayor Miller of St. Louis, that he file quo warranto proceedings in the State Supreme Court to oust the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, as a test of the validity of its charter and franchise. Gentry took the matter under advisement following a hearing here Monday. The suit, if filed by Gentry, will determine whether the Laclede charter, granted by the Legislature 76 years ago, is perpetual as contended by the company, or expires in 1927 as contended by attorneys for the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of St. Louis. The Mayor made the request after an opinion prepared by the Union Electric's attorneys was laid before him.

Quo Warranto proceedings may be instituted directly in Supreme Court only if the Attorney-General consents to use of his name in filing the suit. If he declines, the action could be filed in St. Louis Circuit Court by the Circuit Attorney. In such an event the final decision might be delayed two or three years.

NINE MEN INDICTED FOR COUNTERFEITING

Federal Grand Jury Also Returns True Bills Against Eight as Car Robbers.

Nine members of the John H. Mays gang of counterfeiters were indicted today by the Federal grand jury and eight members of another band which specialized in robbing freight cars were named in the indictments returned in the Federal Court.

The counterfeiters are charged with making, possessing and passing spurious $20 bills. Those indicted were Max, Emil H. Walther, his chief lieutenant, Ralph Pate, Joe Cottell, Antonio Ribando, Fidele, Rosario and Guy Minnella and Vincenzo Piazza. Mays, it will be recalled, was arrested at Murphysboro, Ill., and Walther, who printed the bills was taken into custody by Government agents at Chicago. Walther led them back to St. Louis, where, in a series of raids, the Italian members of the band were rounded up.

In the indictments of the alleged box car robbers, Jake Thompson, proprietor of a roadhouse on the Lemay Ferry road, is named as leader of the gang. Others charged with him for theft from interstate shipments are Clarence Almsworth, George Crowe, Allan Fitzwater, Frank Bell, Adolph Berkowitz, Frank Eisenhart and Herman Levine. It is alleged that on May 21 they broke into a freight car in South St. Louis railroad yards and stole a quantity of canned goods. There are four counts in the joint indictments, for theft, possession, sale and conspiracy.

CHARGES DROPPED AGAINST "SUNNY JIM" PIE PROMOTER

B. F. Chessher and Two Employees Exonerated of Irregularities in Handling Vending Machines.

Charges against B. F. Chessher, Los Angeles, Cal., stockbroker, and two of his employees, of using the mails to defraud in connection with the promotion and sales of "Sunny Jim" pie vending machines in St. Louis in 1925, were dropped yesterday when District Attorney Brewer entered a nolle prosequi in each case before Federal Judge Davis.

The District Attorney's action followed a conference in the Department of Justice in Washington. He told Judge Davis investigation had disclosed Chessher had nothing to do with the alleged illegal methods employed in distributing the machines and while one of the principal stockholders of the Automat Sales and Service Co., had objected to the methods used in writing to branch sales managers, Chessher had agreed, Brewer told the court, to turn over to the receiver for the companies $15,000 all of the profits he received from his holdings in the venture, for the benefit of creditors.

Several St. Louisans, small merchants for the most part, lost approximately $450,000 in the collapse of the "Sunny Jim" venture. There still are 16 defendants named in the indictment pending here, who will not be called for trial until next fall. Chessher, while not an officer of the companies, had appointed his stenographer, G. M. Ferguson, and a clerk, G. F. Wolcott, as directors.

EFFORT TO SETTLE ILLINOIS MINE STRIKE FAILS

Wage Conference Adjourns When Miners Refuse to Work for Less than Former Scale.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The first joint effort of Illinois miners and operators to end the suspension of operations in effect since April 1, collapsed yesterday because of the Jacksonville agreement which caused a walkout of all bituminous coal miners on March 21.

A wage conference that for two weeks has been attempting to effect a settlement in this State adjourned with miners declaring they will not go below the old Jacksonville scale, and operators retorting they will not operate their mines unless a lower rate of pay is accepted by their employees. "The battle of propaganda now is on," Harry Fishwick, president of the miners, asserted as the conference broke up. "If this is the weapon the operators want to use we'll use it, too."

Both factions asserted any further effort to bring about peace in the Illinois mining districts must come from the other. The question is one of economics, said Rice Miller, president of the operators, and with this Fishwick agreed.

CARBON MONOXIDE GAS CAUSED DEATH OF FIREMAN

Lieut. August Hoffman Died When Attempting Rescue of Men in Sewer Excavation.

The gas which caused the death of Lieut. August Hoffman of the fire department last Tuesday, when he was attempting to rescue two workmen overcome by fumes in an excavation at Grand boulevard and Penrose street, was carbon monoxide, or sewer gas, according to a report made to Coroner Vitt today. An inquest in Lieut. Hoffman's death, begun yesterday, was continued until today, to permit examination of blood from his body, to determine what kind of gas had caused death.

The workmen overcome were in an excavation in which a sewer connection was to be placed. They rallied from their stupor, as did another man who was overcome while assisting in rescue work.

YOU CAN BORROW

Any Sum From $10 to $300
At Lawful Interest Rates

The State of Missouri has passed a new law legalizing chattel mortgage loans and specifying the rate of interest that may be charged. This law makes it possible for you to borrow money safely and confidently at a reasonable rate of interest. State supervision and examination by state officials insures you against any overcharge or unfair practice.

Security Is Left in Your Possession

We loan money on your furniture, piano, Victrola, or household goods of any kind. This property remains in your possession. You get the full amount of the loan in cash. You pay interest only for the actual time you keep the money. The rate of interest permitted under the law is three and one-half per cent per month. No fees, no extras, no commissions.

TWENTY PAYMENT PLAN LOANS

Get $ 50.00, pay back $ 2.50 a month
Get 100.00, pay back 5.00 a month
Get 200.00, pay back 10.00 a month
Get 300.00, pay back 15.00 a month

With Legal Interest Payable Monthly

The chart illustrates our 20-payment plan. You get the full amount of the loan, and make repayments in 20 equal monthly installments, plus the lawful interest charge. You pay interest only on the actual balance outstanding, and only for the actual number of days you keep the money. You can make larger payments any time if you desire, and thus reduce the interest charges. Of course, the faster you pay, the less it costs.

Make Application Now

If it is not convenient for you to call at our office, your inquiry, either by mail or telephone, will have our prompt attention. Such inquiry does not obligate you in any way.

Although no loans can be made before July 5th, when the law goes into effect, we urge you to make your application now. Since many people will take advantage of this opportunity to borrow money at the new lawful rate of interest, we suggest that you make your application promptly, so that you can secure the money when you need it.

LINDBERGH'S ARRIVAL
SURPRISES CROWD
Flyer Was Supposed to Land at Scott Field, but Comes Down at Lambert Field.
About 200 persons, who went out to Lambert-St. Louis Field yesterday evening to see Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's airplane, "Spirit of St. Louis," got an unexpected thrill when the transatlantic flyer himself came whirling down on the field, having flown from New York in an arduous pursuit plane, accompanied by Maj. Thomas G. Lamphier, commanding officer of the First Pursuit Group.
It had been generally expected that Lindbergh and his companion would land their speedy Curtiss Hawks at Scott Field, but shortly after 6:30 p. m. the planes were sighted at 2000 feet, just east of the field.
Speeding along at more than 150 miles an hour they were soon over the field where the flyers pulled them back together into perfectly timed loops. Then they dropped down, throttle wide open, flattening out 100 feet above the ground and whirling across the airfield at terrific speed.
Lindbergh Remains in Seat.
After they landed Lamphier climbed out of the cockpit and began divesting himself of his flying togs, but Lindbergh stayed in his seat 10 minutes showing the instruments and controls of the ship to members of his National Guard outfit, the 110th Observation Squadron, who crowded around him.
His next thought was for the "Spirit of St. Louis" which he examined closely, turning the propeller over a couple of times and running his hands over struts and wing. He appeared concerned when Master Sergeant Joseph Wecker told him guardsmen had had to watch it constantly to forestall spectators who wanted to cut away pieces for souvenirs.
Lindbergh and Lamphier left the field with Major William E. Robertson and had dinner at Robertson's home at 40 Kingsbury place where both spent the night. Today Lindbergh is at work correcting proofs of the book which carries his story of the transatlantic flight.
In an interview with reporters he said he was expected in Ottawa, Canada, Saturday noon, which probably will mean he will leave St. Louis tomorrow in the "Spirit of St. Louis." On his return from Canada he will complete his work on his book and within three weeks will set out on a "good will" tour of the United States, financed by the Guggenheim Fund. He will be on the tour between 60 and 90 days.

WOMAN SHOOT AT BURGLAR
HITS NEIGHBOR'S KITCHEN
Another Woman Frightens Intruders From Apartment House by Dropping Screen On Them.
After firing a revolver through the rear door of her home at a man she believed to be a burglar who was standing there last midnight, Mrs. Paul Maret, of 2341 Whittier place, called police to tell them of the incident. At the same time, Mrs. Marie Hill, of 2340 Alton place, also called and complained some one had fired a bullet into the kitchen of her home.
Police found that Mrs. Maret had aimed high when she fired and that the bullet had gone through a window of the Hill home and buried itself in the kitchen wall.
Two men who were trying to force a window of the apartment at 518 Pershing avenue, occupied by Jacob Cohen and his family, ran away when Mrs. Rose Wamuck, who lives in the apartment over the Cohen home, dropped a screen on them. Two men arrested in a rear by alley are being held by police for investigation.

SOVIET DEMANDS RENEWED ACTIVITY IN ALL COUNTRIES

Resolutions Adopted by Third International Opposes Intervention in China by Other Powers.

LAYS DOWN RULES FOR COMMUNISTS

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1947.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., May 29.—Probably no clearer statement has ever been made of the Communist or Third International's firm opposition to any outside intervention in China or the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and its own determination to interfere in the domestic affairs of all other countries, than in the resolution its executive committee adopted today. It is a terse summary of instructions for the Communist parties in all countries, its adoption concluding a week of deliberations in the Kremlin.

Robert Minor, well-known New York cartoonist in Moscow who goes under his party name of "Edward Dumbarton," has represented the "Communist" party of America in Third International affairs since the death of Charles E. Ruthenberg. The session again demonstrated the personal character of the dissection in the all-union Communist party (bolshevik). While the committee rebuked Trotsky, Zinoviev and others of the politically "outs," it adopted their radical ideas for continuing the world revolution which more conservative leaders in the Russian party would willingly abandon.

Pacifism Decried.
The resolution, in its entirety, is: 1. "Defense of the Chinese and Russian revolutions" must be the central slogan upon which attention of the masses is to be concentrated in the present anti-militarist campaign. Communist parties must explain to the masses that no real struggle for peace ever is possible without revolutionary acts by the masses; that pacifism is a fiction to deceive the masses; that the struggle for real peace and to end war means the overthrow of bourgeois governments and the establishing of proletarian dictatorships.

2. Carry on a tireless propaganda in newspapers, meetings and lectures against the war of the imperialists in China, reveal its robbing and looting character, as well as the treason of the reformist trade union leaders (A. F. of L. in the United States), disclose the role of Anglo-American imperialism, struggle against the avaricious sins of their ruling classes. Criticize without mercy pacifist illusions and pacifist ideology. Reveal the steps of bourgeois governments in "disarmament." For this purpose publish any secret treaty or military agreement of the bourgeois governments.

3. Communist parties must carry on their campaigns against war in complete accord with the different phases of the military conflicts. War against the U. S. S. R. and China may assume different forms—economic blockade, military blockade of their coasts by navies, armed bands sent into U. S. S. R. from neighboring countries, organization of internal revolts, etc. Consequently communist parties in their propaganda, must take into consideration the enemy's particular methods of carrying on war, binding them with the general military preparations of capitalistic countries to neutralize their attacks against U. S. S. R. and China.

4. Reveal the international network of intrigues being woven against the U. S. S. R., mobilize the masses for defending the U. S. S. R. from the imperialists under the slogan "The international proletariat is defending its proletarian country."

Advise Street Scenes.

5. Carry on propaganda for a general strike against war in England and in other countries which are taking an active part in the punitive expedition against China.

6. Organize mass demonstrations in the streets in front of the foreign legations of countries which are participating in the punitive expedition against China as well as in front of legations of countries threatening U. S. S. R. with war.

7. Organize demonstrations of women and children on station platforms when trains are leaving with soldiers and on piers in front of warships which are sailing. They also should demonstrate with invalids of war on public squares in front of legations, foreign ministries and war offices.

and local and national congresses for struggling against war.

Fascism a Target.
10. Organize active committees under the slogan "Hands off China and the U. S. S. R." and attract trade union organizations into them. Improve the tactics of the united front of workers in opposition to the united front among capitalists.

11. Wage a struggle on every stage against fascisms as one of the armed forces of the counter-revolutions. To oppose it organize everywhere, if there is any possibility, mass organizations like the Association of Red Front Workers (in Germany).

12. Work in sport and athletic organizations against fascism and war.

13. Conduct a most intensive work in close contact with the communist party among workmen and peasant youth, from whom the present-day armies are being recruited and who have not had the

URGE TRADE DELEGATES TO STUDY WAR DEBTS

American and Italian Representatives Agree on Suggestion at Stockholm Conference.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, June 30.—Delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce conference continued their discussions today on industrial matters, both national and international. The committee on international settlement adopted a resolution that it would be desirable for the chamber to place the flow of big capital from nation to nation.

Dr. Alberto Pirelli of Italy, the president, emphasized that control built up on statistics would give a picture of the international financial situation which would be most useful when the next big loans were negotiated. The International Chamber of Commerce, he said, should study carefully the effect of war debts and reparations paid. The American delegates, Willis H. Booth and Fred I. Kent, and the English delegate, Sir Arthur Balfour, concurred in Dr. Pirelli's views.

Oppose Resolution.
The draft committee on trade barriers submitted the draft of a resolution to be placed before the plenary session on Friday, affirming the conviction that the restoration of world prosperity would be most effectively promoted by progressive reduction of barriers now preventing full expansion of international trade.

The draft resolution unexpectedly met with strong opposition from the French delegation, which disagreed with its free trade tendency, and declared that France in the near future intended to increase her tariffs.

This declaration caused some confusion, and the president of the committee set tomorrow for another meeting to seek a formula which could be unanimously acceptable.

Urge Lower Tariffs.
The draft resolution gives unanimous confirmation of the report of the trade barriers committee, which was accepted as one of the five official documents at the International Economic Conference at Geneva last month, and directs the committee to pursue its examination of the problems detailed therein. It declares that the work of the economic conference depends for the success of its efforts on the execution of the principles laid down by the delegates of 50 nations and hopes that the League of Nations council will take the earliest definite steps with that in mind.

Special emphasis is laid on the necessity of the immediate lowering of excessive tariffs, especially where the dangers of prolonging the present situation are most severe, and calls upon all governments to direct their policies to the early reduction of such barriers. The next congress will be held at Amsterdam.

bloody experience of the World War.

14. Organize societies of war invalids, absorbing the existing organizations of invalids, for struggling against war.

Colonial Activity.
15. Communist parties of all countries must give special attention to the creation of auxiliary organizations of non-proletarian (non-communist) who sympathize with the liberation of the proletariat, with the laboring masses in colonies and sincerely hate the capitalist regime with its oppressive wars and exploitation. An example is the League for Struggling Against Oppression in the Colonies.

16. Intensify the work in armies and navies and increase the anti-military agitation among peasants.
17. Extend the work in the colonies. Establish a united front for struggling against war between the proletariat and the national liberation movement of oppressed populations. Summon congresses of the laboring masses in colonies and explain to them that their interests are identical with those of the U. S. S. R. and of the laboring mass of China which now is struggling for its liberation.

18. Pay more serious attention in the communist parties to the principal features of the bolshevik tactics against war. Expound them in newspapers and in party meetings.
19. Develop a broad internationalization of the Third International, concentrate the attention of the masses on international problems, acquire the ability to associate these problems with the questions of internal class conflicts. A closer contact is needed among Third International sections for struggling against war.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Because his family was left destitute by the flood of April and May, Will Carson, sentenced to 60 days by the Sebastian County Circuit Court on conviction of involuntary manslaughter, was granted an indefinite suspension of judgment by Gov. REVISED COURTHOUSE PLAN TO REDUCE COST PROPOSED Kinsey Will Seek to Change Interior to Keep Within Bond Issue.

A revised plan for construction of the Civil Courthouse to keep the cost of the new structure within the $4,000,000 bond issue fund appropriation will be submitted to the Board of Public Service tomorrow by President Kinsey. Kinsey's plan provides that the exterior of the building be completed as planned, but calls for changes in the interior.

The low bid for the structure, submitted by Frun-Colson Construction Co., was $3,320,790. Only $2,750,000 is available as the remainder of the fund has been spent for foundation and steel work and fees of architects and engineers.

Under Kinsey's plan, changes would be made in the interior design and several courtrooms, unnecessary at present, would not be finished. Kinsey today asked Counselor Muehler for an opinion as to whether it was permissible to negotiate with the low bidder as to the changes, or if it was necessary to call for new bids.

Joe Bucero, 7-year-old son of Mrs. Dora Bucero, 1112 Biddle street is at city hospital today suffering from abrasions and a possible skull fracture, having been struck by an automobile in front of his home yesterday afternoon. The driver of the car, Mrs. Fred Timmerman, of 4245 Margaretta avenue, told police the boy ran from behind a parked automobile.

An automobile struck 3-year-old Silvio Stein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stein, as the child was crossing the street in front of her home, 1124 Aubert avenue yesterday afternoon. She suffered a dislocated left shoulder and possible skull fracture. Beatrice Tyler, Negro school teacher of 4142 Enright avenue, driver of the machine, was charged with careless driving.

CLIMBER HURT BY FALL IN ZION CANYON, UTAH

Fire Seen Tuesday Night Indicated He Had Ascended Hitherto Unconquered Peak.

By the Associated Press.
ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah, June 30.—The peak known as the Great White Throne in Zion canyon is thought to have lost its record of never having been ascended by man, but the man supposed to have climbed it lay at the base of the 3000-foot perpendicular cliff in a serious condition.

W. H. W. Evans of Pasadena, Cal., set out to climb the peak Tuesday. That night a fire blazed from the topmost crag. When he failed to return a searching party was organized and found him injured by a fall.

John Drew's Condition Unchanged.
By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—His condition remaining virtually unchanged, John Drew spent another fairly comfortable night in a hospital here, where he is seriously ill. He is suffering from arthritis.

Mrs. Kintzing was one of the first police matrons in St. Louis, about $300 and the furnishings. She retired several years ago. The fire damaged the house mined.

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 30.
Mrs. Coolidge is her own housekeeper this week, yesterday she came here with President Coolidge to do her shopping. While the President was at the office, Mrs. Coolidge went marketing and the White House limousine had a basket of provisions when she and the President set out for home
Miss E. A. Riley, her housekeeper, left Tuesday to enter the hospital at Rochester, Minn., for a rest.

PEKIN LEADERS SEEK ARMISTICE WITH MODERATES

Report From Hankow Also Indicates Power of Radicals Nears End; Russians to Leave at Once.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 30.—The Pekin correspondent of the Daily Mail declares there is a strong movement at Pekin to call an armistice and arrange peace terms with Chiang Kai-shek, leader of the Moderate Nationalists of Nanking.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, June 30.—News received here today from Hankow, seat of the Radical Nationalist Government headed by Eugene Chen, while meager, is interpreted as meaning that important changes are being brought about there presumably in compliance with the ul-timumatum of Chiang Kai-shek, the Moderate Nationalist leader, and
Gen. Feng Yu-shiang, to oust the Russians, quell the radical labor unions and stifle communism generally.

A British navy radio message states that the Russian, Michael Borodin, adviser to the Hankow Nationalists, will leave tonight for an unstated destination, that all Russian, except members of the consulate staff, will leave within 24 hours that certain labor unions have been dissolved, that the picketing system has been abolished and that there is a large movement of troops across the River Wuchang to guard the railroad.

Other reports from Hankow state there is a general feeling that the power of the radicals is near an end, and that the complete curbing of labor union excesses is a matter of days, it being added that official circles as well as the public are expecting great changes in the governmental policy in the next few days.

The authorities in their drive against the radicals are said to have even ordered the disbandment of Boy Scout organizations.

REPARATIONS OFFER BY NANKING GROUP

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, June 30.—The Nanking or moderate nationalist regime in China, is willing to accept responsibility and make reparations for the damage suffered by Americans during the Nanking disorders of March 24, C. C. Wu, Minister of Foreign Affairs for the Nanking Government told Senator Burton K. Wheeler yesterday.
Wheeler is in China studying conditions.

Wu also told Wheeler that the Nanking regime would like to have the United States Consul return to Nanking and to have the missionaries return to the interior, whence most of them fled during the antiforeign campaign of the last few months.

He said the Nanking Government was making provisions in the war-swept regions for the resumption of Missionary activity.

In connection with the Nanking disorders, which resulted in shooting to death of the Rev. John E.
Williams, Vice President of Nanking University and much property damage, Wu said:

"The Nanking authorities, although morally not responsible for the Nanking incident, are ready to accept responsibility and make reparations for the damages Americans suffered. It was an incident that true Chinese nationalists regret, especially when it is considered that it was the work of elements instigated by parties then taking shelter under the aegis of the Kuomintang (nationalist political organization)."

By J. ROY STOCKTON.

Bob O'Farrell has given a convincing demonstration of the effect that his presence in the battle front has on the Cardinals and if the next few days show that he can return to duty as a regular, able to jump in when he is needed the prospects of the world champions to repeat their pennant victory will be bright indeed.

Chicago's Cubs are only a game behind the Cardinals and only a game and a half behind the Pirates, but despite the high position of the Chicago team it is difficult to concede Joe McCarthy's machine an equal chance in the flag race with the two teams which concluded a four-game struggle for the lead at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon.

Pittsburgh has the punch and the Cardinals have the pitchers, and in winning the final game of the series the men of O'Farrell showed that they could match the Pirate slugger, in pounding the ball and that the Pittsburgh schism did not have a copyright on the formula whereby big leads are overcome and apparent defeats are turned into glorious victories.

The Big Question.

Therewon't be, of course, will be felt from time to time. To porcer cannot cover the ground that Therewon't be and there will be occasional base hits which Tommy probably would convert into putouts. But Toporcer will do his share of the hitting and the big question with the Cardinals will not concern shortstop but whether O'Farrell can serve regularly.

Bob donned the mask and pad yesterday for the first time since May 15, when he caught in a game at Boston. When he took his place behind the bat in the fifth inning Pittsburgh was leading 6 to 5. In the fifth the Pirates increased their total to seven and in the eighth they added two more runs, were leading, 9 to 5, when the champions went to bat in their half of the eighth.

Real Hill Climbers.

It looked like a big hill to climb, that four-run lead, but it was not too much for the Cardinals with a high stepper like O'Farrell leading them. Jim Bottomley started the inning with a single to center. The cheering subsided when Holm forced Bottomley and the cheers were for Traynor when the strong-armed third baseman, grounded Bell's hot smash, robbing Lester of an extra base hit and whistled the ball to Harris for the second out.

That brought up O'Farrell. His team was beaten, apparently. It needed him. He realized how badly he was needed and though his arm still bothered him he had put on the accoutrements of baseball war and taken his place in the battle front. And here was a situation where he wasn't depending on him. It was a sharp eye and a good swing that he needed and he had both. He picked one of Emil Yde's shots and slapped a single to right and Holm romped home and the Pirate lead was only three runs.

Doubtful, Then Hafey.

Taylor Douthitt followed with a spinning pop single to center and O'Farrell legged it to third. Still the Cards were three runs behind but Donie Bush knew his enemy and waved Yde to the showboat. The best of pitchers was needed now and Ray 'remmer has a reputation as one of the best. And so Ray came from the bullpen to face the dangerous Chick Hafey, hobbling on one lame leg, but still dangerous.

Hafey greeted Kremer with a slashing single to left, O'Farrell raced home, Douthitt stopped at second and now only two runs were needed to tie the score. Up came Ray Blades. During the winter his knee was cut open and a piece of cartilage was cut out. Then when the leg was about sound the other knee had and in the last few games he has been hobbling a bit. But Ray stood up there and swished his war club and he swished so effectively that he slammed a double to deep left center and Douthitt and Reinhardt the latter running for Hafey, raced over the plate and the score was tied.

Toporcer's Hit Does It. Still Kremer looked like the best pitcher the Pirates had and he tarried. But no pitcher could have stopped this charge. Toporcer

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Real Test.

THE real race is yet to come. It is the Latonia championship, the ultra in 2-year-old racing tests. It is run on July 21—the day that will also see Jack Dempsey put to the supreme ordeal of coming back.

It's estimated value, $60,000, makes it attractive enough to lure all the good eligibles in the country; it is run at one and three-fourth miles and will therefore keep out all of the false hearts and the weak legs; it is contested at a season when all the 2-year-olds will have shaken off the slack condition of early spring and become thoroughly hardened through campaigning, and it is run under equal weight conditions, whereby colts and geldings carry 126 pounds and fillies 123 pounds.

To make the affair still more a sporting stake, it costs each nominator a total of $500 to send his horse to the post. Nominations for the race are made two years in advance, so that practically every good colt and filly is eligible.

Handy Mandy vs. Chance Shot.

THIS far 3-year-old form has been uncertain. The leaders of this division have beaten one another with singular inconsistency. No 3-year-old has won two major derbies or 3-year-old classics of the country.

There is a belief that Chance Shot is the best 3-year-old running. On the race of Handy Mandy in winning the Latonia Derby, in time that lowered the American record for the mile and one-half, this filly will take a lot of beating, even with Chance Shot running. However, Handy Mandy takes up 14 pounds in the Championship Stakes and that may stop her. At one mile and three-quarters 14 pounds would be equal to five or six lengths, more than a second of time.

A Second Comeback.

WILLIE RITCHIE is only 26 years old; yet only a few "old timers" recall him as a world's champion lightweight fighter.

Tuesday Willie came back to the ring world for the second time, and he won his fight on a slapped a double to center and Blades hobbled home with the run that put the Cards ahead, evened the series and reduced the Pirates' first place lead to half a game. Just what it was when the bold bad Buccaneers brought their weapons to St. Louis.

The game before that eighth inning was all Pirates. They knocked out Sherdel, or battered him so hard that he retired for a pinch hitter. They increased their lead at the expense of Jimmy Ring and they even added to their total off Jess Haines' slants. But they still did not knock in enough runs and in the ninth inning Arthur Reinhardt turned back Cuylen, Barnhart and Harris to protect the one-run lead.

Exhibition Game Today. Today the Cardinals will play an exhibition game in Decatur and in view of the many cripples the good people of Decatur may not see the full strength of the world champions in action. Tomorrow O'Farrell will send his men against the Cubs with Alexander likely to work an early game of the series, the first if his arm is strong again.

Bringing the road campaign the Cardinals will play at Chicago, Pittsburgh, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, again at New York, and then at Cincinnati, returning to Sportsman's Park July 21, meeting the Eastern teams.

20 Out of 29 Won.

Twenty games were won and nine lost during the stand at home concluded yesterday. The Cardinals won three straight from Cincinnati, took three out of four from Brooklyn, won one of four from Boston, three straight from the Phillies, broken even in four games with the Giants, won three straight from the Cubs, three out of four from Cincinnati and then broke even with the Pirates in a four-game series.

New York and Pittsburgh held the champions even, the Boston Braves being the only team to take a series from O'Farrell's men. The percentage for the stand at home was .633, which if continued would win the pennant by ten games in any league.

Cardinals Sign Lane Tech Star

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 30.—Eddie Grabowski, 6'8" hitting shortstop of Lane Tech, Chicago High School League champions, signed yesterday with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The boy, who stands five feet, 10 inches and weighs 175 pounds, made only three fielding errors in 35 prep games.

Gunn Reaches Quarter Finals In Golf Tourney

Georgia Tech Star Defeats Mark Stuart, 3 and 2, at Garden City.

By the Associated Press. GARDEN CITY, N. Y., June 30.—Emerson Carey, Cornell football captain, eliminated E. S. Stimpson of Harvard in the second round of match play in the Intercollegiate Golf Association championship today.

Stimpson was 1 down at the seventeenth and Carey collected a birdie 2 on the eighteenth to preclude the possibility of the Harvard man squaring the match.

Paul Haviland of Yale reached the quarter-finals by defeating John Sheldon of Lehigh 6 and 4. Haviland was playing good golf, getting a 34, three under par, going out.

Watts Gunn of Georgia Tech reached the quarter-finals by defeating Mark Stuart of St. Johns, 3 and 2. Gunn went out in 38 to become 4 up. He bagged an eagle on the 48th yard fifth. Stewart took the 49th in another second round match. Parker, conqueror of Lester Bolstead, big ten champion, this morning, caught his opponent at the seventeenth, but missed a short putt at the twentieth that cost him the match. The third and the ball rolled to the cup and dropped in for a birdie three.

Charles D. Hunter, representing the University of Washington, defeated Robert Beale of Union, 3 and 1.

Ellsworth Giles of Princeton had to travel 20 holes to defeat Alex Knapp of Yale in another second round match. Knapp, conqueror of Lester Bolstead, big ten champion, this morning, caught his opponent at the seventeenth, but missed a short putt at the twentieth that cost him the match. TILDEN ELIMINATED BY COCHET IN FIVE SETS AT WIMBLEDON old, and for the greater part of the first three sets dominated the courts, not sparing himself in his energetic efforts to have the match over with.

It was when within a game of winning the third set to clinch the match, that Tilden faltered and Cochet was quick to take advantage of the opportunity, running off six straight games to capture the set, 7-5.

With Tilden showing great signs of fatigue, the French player came back strongly in the fourth and fifth sets and with them took the match.

Never in the history of British tennis has Wimbledon witnessed such a spectacle as greeted Cochet's victory. Staid and venerable gentlemen threw their top hats in the air and the cheers and applause lasted for several minutes. Tilden was so fagged out that he was unable to stand before the scores of photographers who swarmed about him for pictures, Cochet alone facing the cameras.

Rene La Coste, holder of the American national lawn tennis championship and favorite of many for the title, was eliminated in the semifinals today by his fellow countryman, Jean Borotra, in a five-set match. The score was 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 1-6, 6-2.

The overthrow of La Coste by Borotra caused considerable surprise, but both Frenchmen were so overjoyed at Cochet's victory over Tilden that they appeared to care little who won.

La Coste played without his usual mercurialness, while Borotra made all sorts of seemingly impossible strokes.

Borotra will meet Cochet for the title.

It was a pleasant promenade into the final for the California girl, as Miss Fry was unable to cope with her attack. Helen played as though desirous of avenging the two American defeats on the same courts. She showed the English girl no mercy, attacking relentlessly.

Her speed of stroke was faster than that of either Tilden or Cochet in the last few games of their long drawn match.

Tilden Is at His Best.

Cochet took the first game at love on his own service, a fine Tilden for the last point. The American came back in similar fashion and then broke through Cochet's service to lead at 2-1.

Tilden, attacking with a vim and energy he has never exceeded in his European appearances, soon

Dempsey's Timing and Judgment of Distance Are Bad, Says DeForest

Man Who Trained Jack for Willard Fight Also Finds His Wind Is No Good—Thinks Sparring Partners Now at Camp Will Be of Little Use.

By JIMMY DE FOREST.
Trainer of Dempsey for Willard Fight.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, N. Y., June 30.—Jack Dempsey needs sparring partners. It is a little too early to gauge his condition because he hasn't had a chance to reap any real benefit from his training here. That is, he hasn't had a chance to show results. But he hasn't one real good man to make him put up a fight.

That's what Jack Dempsey needs, a batter who will cut loose with him and force him to cut loose himself. Some fellow who will put up a tough argument, because that's the only way Dempsey can get himself into fighting condition.

The men who are helping Dempsey are unable to carry on a continual attack; they go fast for a few seconds and then stop, giving Jack too much time to rest in the fighting part of the rounds.

Not Much Time Left. This chap Jack Sharkey is not going to give the former champion any chance to rest when they square off in the ring on July 21, and Dempsey hasn't a whole lot of time to get in trim. For this game and he was playing in dejected fashion, but just now you can't beat it for the purpose.

Dempsey's timing and judgment of distance are bad and his wind is no good, but these things can be remedied by the training he is undergoing. You can't expect a fellow to show the accuracy of a sharpshooter right off the bat when he starts his workouts. But it will take a whole lot of boxing to bring out that timing and judgment of distance which Dempsey will have to have when he goes against Sharkey, probably as good a boxer as Dempsey ever was called upon to face.

I'm going to study Dempsey closely for the next few days. I'm going to tell exactly what I think of his condition. I like Dempsey very much, and if it should happen that I do not approve of his condition, I know that Jack will not blame me. I think my criticism, for I can see that there may be things that I will criticize, will help Jack. When I say criticism I mean just that, not "knocking."

It is possible that Dempsey can himself in good fighting condition by July 21. It is not possible for him to get himself in as good condition as he was three years ago.

Many spectators were wondering whether the American would be able to finish the match when he electrified the crowd by acesing Cochet twice in the fourth game, bringing the score to 2-1.

Tilden's never-say-die spirit was exemplified in the next game when, down 4-0 on Cochet's service, he kept his nerve to take the game and go into the lead at 3-2.

But the effort told heavily, and he lost his own service, making the game score 3-1.

Pandemonium broke loose as Cochet rallied to win the seventh game and lead at 4-3. Then Tilden served. He was the picture of fatigue, inhaling deeply between each service. His efforts to revive his strength were fruitless and he lost the game.

Cochet needed but one more to clinch the mat, and he won it.

The American won the first game at love, on her opponent's service, the Senorita making two errors.

Miss Ryan Wins First Set. Miss Ryan soon ran up a lead of 3-1, breaking through the Spanish girl's service twice and winning her own once. Both players were cautious, playing careful baseline tennis. Miss Ryan ran her lead up to 5-1, continually attacking.

Senorita de Alvarez, who thus far had played listless tennis, suddenly came to life and took the seventh game on her service. The American won the next to take the first set at 6-2.

Senorita de Alvarez, beginning with the seventh game of the first set, played much improved tennis. She carried the eighth game to force three times on the American's service, but finally lost the set at 6-2. The Spanish girl was now going to the net, but it seemed that Miss Ryan's game was the sounder of the two.

Senorita de Alvarez held the upper hand throughout the second set, and Miss Ryan failed to win a single game, although she fought hard. The Spanish girl passed her opponent several times for clean placements after drawing Miss Ryan to the net with a drop stroke.

The Spanish champion, continuing her winning pace, took a lead of 2-0 in the third set. Up to this point she had won eight straight games.

Senorita de Alvarez carried the score to 4-0 and the American girl appeared unable to make a successful defense against her relentless attack.

Miss Ryan, however, staged a brilliant rally at this point, electrifying the immense crowds as she took four games in succession and carried the set to 4-1. The Spanish girl seemed tired from her exertions, but was able to capture the next two games and with them the set and match.

Helen Wills and Elizabeth Ryan reached the quarter finals of the women's doubles by defeating the Misses P. Dransfield and H. Hargrave of England 6-2, 6-1.

Steideman, in Conquering Favorite, Plays Steadier Game of Tennis.

By DAVISON OBEAR. In the greatest upset of the District junior tennis tournament at the Triple A Club, Herbert Steideman yesterday defeated William Bascom in a close three-set match. Bascom was one of several players favored to reach the final round.

Steideman gained the second round victory due to steadier playing. The complete score of the contest was 7-5, 6-3, 7-5, a total of 38 games.

Vernon Tietjen, District indoor junior champion, and Junior Bochner, protégé of William T. Tilden, reached the semifinal round of the junior singles play. Tietjen defeated Joyce Portnoy, Soldan High player, 6-4, 6-4, while Bochner gained a victory over Sidney Wyman of the Oakland Tennis Club. The score was 6-0, 6-3.

In a third round contest Jack Plunkert defeated Kenneth Sanosky. This match was the only three-set battle in the third round. Plunkert outplayed Sanosky to win, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1. The juniors are expected to reach the final round of the singles this afternoon. First round contests in the junior doubles are on the schedule for today.

Visiting Players Eliminated. All of the visiting players have been eliminated from the junior singles event. The two remaining Tulsa players, Ben Campbell and Giles Penock, went down to defeat yesterday afternoon. Campbell was defeated by Wilbur Lindauer, while Penock lost to Jack Plunkert.

Ivan Combe, the Greenville (Ill.) junior, was eliminated by Sidney Wyman.

Alfred Nat Rothschild, a strong favorite to capture the Boys' District title, reached the third round by a straight set victory over Charles Rovin, 6-1, 6-2. Am-

COLUMBIA WASHINGTON SECOND 4-MILE RACE

Eastern Victory Proclaimed Great Triumph for Columbia Glendon—Navy, Favorite, Is a Poor Fourth.

By the Associated Press. POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 30.—Columbia was out of the intercollegiate rowing wilderness today on the sweep of the Glendon stroke.

After 11 long years of seasons in which hopes had lifted high only to fall shatter when the big test came, the Yorkers found the magic yesterday and won the intercollegiate varsity four-mile championship with the youngest crew ever battled for Poughkeepsie blue ribbon of rowing. The 29 minutes 57 seconds.

Since 1914, when Columbia won the varsity title, her crew have had a habit of cracking critical moments. This year's year-old aggregation not only fared to crack, but rowed heart out of their academy, flashed a startling exhibition finishing grit and speed to beat off the final challenge of the championship Washington crew.

The Washingtonians went off like the champions they were fighting, but they were mastered by a crew that harnessed speed and steadiness with an conquerable spirit and strategy daintly reserved for oarsmen beyond their tender years.

After 13 long years of famine, seasons in which hopes had been lifted only to fall shattered when the big test came, the New Yorkers found the magic touch yesterday and won the intercollegiate varsity four-mile championship with the youngest crew that ever battled for Poughkeepsie's blue ribbon of rowing. The time was 20 minutes 57 seconds.

Since 1914, when Columbia last won the varsity title, her crews have had a habit of cracking at critical moments. This year's 19-year-old aggregation not only refused to crack, but rowed the heart out of the crack California eight and the naval academy, twin favorites before the race, then flashed a startling exhibition of finishing grit and speed to beat out the final challenge of the championship Washington crew.

The Washingtonians went down like the champions they were, fighting, but they were mastered by a crew that harnessed speed, form and steadiness with an unconquerable spirit and strategy ordinarily reserved for oarsmen far beyond their tender years.

The Washingtonians went down like the champions they were, fighting, but they were mastered by a crew that harnessed speed, form and steadiness with an unconquerable spirit and strategy ordinarily reserved for oarsmen far beyond their tender years.

Were Freshmen Last Year.

The victory of this startling Columbia combination was dime novel stuff. It outdid the most heroic stories of youthful fiction. Its achievement, in only two years of coaching by "Rich" Glendon, the head coach, and his father, "Old Dick," originator of the Glendon stroke, reflected remarkable tribute to the teaching skill of these masters, whose system produced three championship Poughkeepsie eights at the navy before going to Columbia.

Six of the eight victorious oarsmen. In addition to the little coxswain, were in the championship freshman crew developed by Glendon last season. Most of them came to Columbia with little or no previous rowing experience, with the exception of their captain and sophomore stroke, Eric Lambert of New York. They had been beaten over short distances earlier in the season by Yale, Princeton and the Naval Academy.

But Poughkeepsie was their main objective. In reaching it these sophomores, aided by one junior and one senior, outrowed six of the country's most formidable crews, while Lambert out-generated and outstroked some of the greatest oarsmen of this day, among them the Navy's famous pace-setter Tom Eddy.

Where the Navy had been picked as the crew to bring the varsity crown back to the East, it furnished an upset as startling as was Columbia's victory.

Navy Is Poor Fourth.

The sailors were a poor fourth.

Six lengths behind the victors they were barely able to beat out Cornell and Syracuse, which were only a second apart in a battle for fifth place won by the Ithacans. It was the first time since the war that the Middies had failed to finish either first or second. The worst they had ever done was third, in 1907, their first appearance in the regatta. They rowed yesterday, however, with a substitute No. 7, who had been in the boat only three days.

Whatever slim chances Pennsylvania entertained of being up among the leaders were blasted when the Quaker shell hit a submerged log in the first quarter mile, causing a crack in the boat, which was half full of water by the time the Red and Blue oarsmen got to the finish, outdistanced. They were approximately 15 lengths behind the winners.

Washington lost little prestige even if the Huskies did lose the varsity title. They won the three-mile junior varsity race for the third straight year, leading Columbia by three lengths in record-breaking time. Their varsity, as runner-up, kept intact the Husky record of never being worse than second in six straight years. They have won three times and been runner-up as many others.

Some Joy for Huskies.

There was almost as much joy for the

Mary Wright Is 50-Yard Victor

Defeats Miss Ressler and Belleville Girl Swimmer for City Title.

The duel for city championship honors in the 50-yard dash event, between Arvella "Mickey" Ressler, of the New Coliseum, and Mary Wright of Forest Park Highlands, resulted in a victory for Miss Wright at the Coliseum pool last night. The Forest Park girl swam the distance in 33 1-5 seconds, beating Nora Fisher of the Belleville Turners team and Miss Ressler.

Miss Fisher won the 50-yard breast stroke event with Frances Clary and Gertrude Rathdoff of the New Coliseum second and third.

One of the features of the program was the victory of Francis Stephens of the Coliseum, over Gene Bolden, his teammate, in the 150-yard free style swim. Joe Sheffedeker of Belleville was third. Bolden is a recent addition to the Coliseum team. He attained some distinction as a member of the Illinois A. C. team.

Sheffedeker of the Belleville team won the junior championship of the Western A. A. U. in the 50-yard event, finishing in front of Anthony Nagy of the Coliseum and Carl Yeckel. His time was 28 1-5 seconds.

for Washington in conquering its Pacific Coast rival decisively as there would have been in leading the whole field home. Reversing their early season result, the Huskies were three lengths ahead of the Golden Bears, who led for two of the first three miles, but faltered as Columbia and Washington came fast in the final mile. California was third to the same brace of rivals in the junior varsity race but finished a poor sixth in the

The "Spirit of the Browns."

PHIL BALL, the owner of the Browns.

Has got a dandy scheme, whereby he'll have his ups and downs.

Just like his famous team.

In short, he bought a monoplane for flitting here and there, and now and then like Howley's men.

He'll go up in the air.

As soon as everything is Jake

And flying date is set,

The flight of Lindbergh he will make.

The populace forget.

A sandwich in his good right hand,

And with conditions right,

Our gallant Phil to Pennantville

Will make a non-stop flight.

In flying for the championship

On artificial wings,

He'll not essay the spiral dip

Or other fancy things.

But far above the mountain tops,

O'er valleys, hills and towns,

Up in the sky will proudly fly

The "Spirit of the Browns."

RENAULT WILL JOIN JACK DEMPSEY'S CAMP

NEW YORK, June 30.—Jack Renault, ranked as one of the 10 best heavyweights, has received a hurry call to Jack Dempsey's fighting camp near Saratoga Springs and expects to report there at once to serve as a sparring partner.

Dempsey's evident desire to swallow the punches of the French-Canadian convinced the most skeptical of the former champion's earnestness and belief in his own ability to handle the best of them and return to the top.

First Defeat in 35 Starts for Bruce Flowers

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 30.—Bruce Flowers has met his master at last. This fast Negro, whom some are pleased to call the "second Joe Gans," was thoroughly thrashed by Kid Kaplan at the Queensboro stadium last night.

Kaplan, fighting the best bout of his whole career, handled the black as if he was a child. He got the decision at the end of 10 rounds.

Kaplan made a rushing victory of it from the first tap of the bell. No sooner had it sounded than Kaplan was at Flowers like a hawk. His sudden attack was so forceful that Flowers was taken completely by surprise. He was groggy in the second round when Kaplan hooked him with lefts to the head.

Flowers fought back viciously and went to his corner with blood trickling from a cut on his left eye. Flowers made a nice spurt in the fourth round when he swapped punches with Kaplan. Kaplan kept after the Negro's body and there were many rallies with the body as the objective of both.

Flowers tried to make a rally of it toward the end, but he was too far gone to recover. It was the first defeat in thirty-five starts for Flowers. He hadn't lost a fight in two years up to last night. They fought at the light-weight limit.

CANDLE SALESMAN INDICTED
Federal Grand Jury investigates Fraud Against St. Louis Firm.
A Federal grand jury today indicted J. Leo Bulger, Chicago salesman, for using the mails to further a scheme to defraud the St. Louis Candles & Wax Co. of 208 South Main street.

The indictment charges that Bulger, the Chicago representative of the company, falsely and fraudulently caused several large orders of votive candles to be sent to Chicago churches. When the shipments arrived, pastors of the respective churches turned them back, saying they had not ordered the candles. Bulger for several months drew a monthly sum of $240 from the company, which was to be deducted from his commission on sales. Preliminary steps have been taken to bring Bulger here for trial.

How's Business?

A quarter million American business leaders get the answer from this map in Nation's Business every month. Get it yourself. Tell us on your letterhead, or your business card, to send you Nation's Business regularly. We'll bill you. And the price of your subscription will be returned to you if you are not completely satisfied.

The prosperity of every locality in this country is tied up with the prosperity of the country as a whole.

This is truer today than ever before. No industry, no community is self-supporting. The man in California rides in a car made in Detroit and on tires made in Akron. The man in Boston breakfasts on cantaloupe grown in Arizona and on bacon packed in Iowa.

The credit man in Massachusetts can't dodge the business condition of Texas.

The San Francisco shipper, dealing in perishables, must know the state of his far-away markets.

And the far-away markets, either failing or succeeding in bringing money back, affect the business done by the very retail stores in the home town.

So each month, Nation's Business gives an accurate map of the nation's business compared to the month before and to the corresponding month a year back.

This map is universally accepted as authoritative. It is studied by subscribers. It is cited by newspapers. Even the War Department uses it to go after recruits in localities where business is dull.

This map is prepared each month by Frank Greene, Managing Editor of Bradstreet's. From every city of commercial importance in the country come reports to him from trained business observers. Against these reports he balances the figures of every major industry.

His map and accompanying summary constitute a resume of the condition of raw materials, production, sales and retail buying, transportation, weather and government influences and the foreign movements which affect American trade.

This map is only one of the valuable aids given the business man every month in the pages of Nation's Business.

Such men as John N. Willys, Julius Barnes, Senator Borah and Carter Glass, Edward A. Filene, Ogden Mills, and many other leaders in every field of business, talk to the readers of Nation's Business as one business man talks to another.

That is why Nation's Business is the fastest growing business magazine in America today.

Tell us to send Nation's Business along. Use your letterhead or your business card. We'll start you off with the July issue, and send you a bill.

The cost is only $7.50 for a full three-year term. Your money will be refunded without question if you don't consider the investment well worth while.

PRESIDENT SENDS CONGRATULATIONS

Two Army Aviators Also Receive Messages From High Government Officials and Admirals.

By The Associated Press.
HONOLULU, June 30.—The pleasant penalties of heroism were fixed upon Lieutenants, Lester J. Mat-land and Albert Hegenberger today as Hawaiians hailed their swift, sure flight from California to Honolulu.

The two trim, wind-bronzed, army aviators had passed the night in a private suite at the Waikiki Beach hotel, in an endeavor to make up for the sleep they lost in their flight.

An active social program was arranged for the two. The schedule today included a call at 9 a. m. on Major-General Edward M.
Lewis, commanding the Hawaiian Department of the army; 10 a. m., a call upon Rear Admiral John D.
McDonald, commanding the fourteenth naval district; 11 a. m., a call upon Gov. Wallace Farrington; 12 noon, a community luncheon at which Matland and Hegenberger were to be honored guests; 7
p. m., a dinner given by Col. John H. Howard, department chief of police; and 9 p. m., a public reception.

Further social activities also have been arranged which will keep them busy on the evening of July 2 and July 4.

Messages Pouring In.
Numerous congratulatory messages were received by the flyers, including one from President Coolidge. Others came from high government officials and admirals.
There was much speculation as to the effect their successful flight will have upon public interest in the competition for the Dole prizes. The general opinion is that the Dole flights will develop into a race for the first end second prizes of $25,000 and $10,000 for the first flights from the mainland to Hawaii after noon of August 12.

The much discussed radio beacon, which was to have guided the big monoplane failed to work consistently, due to defective receiving apparatus aboard the plane.
When the honor escort left Wheeler Field to meet them, Matland and Hegenberger were approximately 100 miles north of their intended course. As a result, they slipped in unscathed, surprising a great crowd which had almost gone to sleep waiting for them.

The flyers first sighted the Island of Kaula. Being familiar with the Hawaiian Islands, they immediately oriented themselves and turned southward toward Oahu.

The aerial escort was far away lingering between Diamond Head and Koko Head and becoming momentarily more anxious, as it scanned the horizon toward Maui and Molokai.

Rear Escort Half Hour.
It was half an hour after Mat-land and Hegenberger landed that the airplane escort that had gone out to meet them returned to find the big Fokker plane already at Wheeler Field, surrounded by the military police guard, and the two aviators on the reviewing stand receiving congratulations and telling how the longest all-water flight in history had been made.

HAWAIIANS HAIL ARMY FLYERS FOR RECORD SEA FLIGHT

RECEPTIONS START WITH CALLS UPON ISLAND OFFICIALS

Makers of New Oceanic Non-Stop History Given Night's Rest Before Welcome Program.

PRESIDENT SENDS CONGRATULATIONS

Two Army Aviators Also Receive Messages From High Government Officials and Admirers.

By the Associated Press.
HONOLULU, June 30.—The pleasant penalties of heroism were fixed upon Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger today as Hawaiians hailed their swift, 24-hour flight from California to Honolulu.

The two trim, wind-bronzed, army aviators had passed the night in a private suite at the Waikiki Beach hotel, in an endeavor to make up for the sleep they lost in their flight.

An active social program was arranged for the two. The schedule today included a call at 9 a. m. by Major-General Edward M. Lewis, commanding the Hawaiian Department of the army; 10 a. m. a call upon Rear Admiral John D. McDonald, commanding the fourteenth naval district; 11 a. m. a call upon Gov. Wallace Farrington; 12 noon, a community luncheon at which Maitland and Hegenberger were to be honored guests; 7 p. m. dinner given by Col. John H. Howard, department air officer, and Mrs. Howard; 8 p. m., a public reception.

Further social activities also have been arranged, which will keep them busy on the evenings of July 2 and July 4.

Messages pouring in. Numerous congratulatory messages were received by the flyers, including one from President Coolidge. Others came from high government officials and admirers. There was much speculation as to the effect their successful flight will have upon public interest in the competition for the Dole prize. The general opinion is that the Dole flight will develop into a race for the first and second prizes of $25,000 and $10,000 for the first flight from the mainland to Hawaii after noon of August 12.

The much discussed radio beacon, which was to have guided the monoplane failed to work consistently due to defective receiving apparatus aboard the plane. When the honor escort left Wheeler Field to meet them, Maitland and Hegenberger were approximately 100 miles north of their intended course. As a result, they slipped in unscathed, surprising a great crowd which had almost gone to sleep waiting for them.

The flyers first sighted the island of Kauai, the Boeing familiar with the Hawaiian Islands, they immediately oriented themselves and turned southward toward Oahu.

The aerial escort was far away during the Diamond Head and Koko Head and becoming momentarily more anxious, as it scanned the horizon toward Maui and Molokai.

Rear Escort Half Hour. It was half an hour after Maitland and Hegenberger landed that the airplane escort that had gone out to meet them returned to find the big Fokker plane already at Wheeler Field surrounded by the military police guard, and the two aviators on the reviewing stand receiving congratulations and telling him the longest all-water flight in history had been made.

HAWAIIAN FLYERS SPIN ACROSS SEA AT 115 MILES AN HOUR, THINKING THEY ARE IN RACE

Maitland and Hegenberger Did Not Know Smith Had Abandoned His Plan to Enter Contest—Kept Close to Course.

By the Associated Press.
HONOLULU, June 30.—Refreshed by a brief rest and a dip in the ocean, Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger yesterday told the story of their record-breaking flight across the Pacific and answered questions put to them by newspaper reporters.

From the time Maitland and Hegenberger took off from Oakland Tuesday at 7:19 a. m. until their monoplane started the clouds off the Hawaiian coast and rode into Wheeler Field, the Army air field, 25 miles from here, on a sunbeam, they were sighted by only one vessel, and that in mid-ocean, whirling through space at close to 100 miles an hour, they finished the 2400-mile passage over the Pacific waters in 25 hours and 50 minutes. They landed at 8:59 a. m. Pacific Time.

The radio beacon signals that were to have guided them functioned only part of the time; they set their course by dead reckoning and by the heavens.

No line of warships stretched along their course to save them should disaster befall; their plane would have floated only a short time on the stormy waves. But, sustained by the knowledge of a perfected airplane and by their own stout courage, they carried on, gaining their goal and the glory that goes with brave accomplishments of the longest ocean flight on record.

No hapless men ever stepped from a plane that they had flown, bronze, extremely capable and immaculate, too, they appeared as they shed their workmen's coveralls and emerged in the spick and span uniform of the army air service to salute their superior officers.

"I have realized the dream of a lifetime," Maitland said. "I have always wanted to fly to Hawaii."

"My first and outstanding impression is that this flight is the starting point toward more general distribution and strengthening of military aviation, and an important step in reorganization of our coast defense."

"I might add right here that this flight positively was not in the nature of a stunt. The most complete arrangements possible were made to make it a success."

Not Far Off Course. Asked regarding the extent of deviation from their plotted course, Hegenberger, the navigator, answered:

"We knew where we were at all times, or very closely so. While we were not exactly on the course every minute of the time, we were not very far away from it."

"Our first check as to position was made with a steamship bound for San Francisco when we were about 775 miles out. I remember I wrote a note to Maitland telling him we ought to sight the ship in about 25 minutes. And when we looked out, after a while, we saw it."

"We ran into a very heavy crosswind during the first few miles, but Maitland, explaining weather conditions, 'but after that the winds were generally favorable.'"

"Later on, the wind was right on our tail, and I can tell you that was much more than we expected," Hegenberger added.

"Right at the beginning, each pilot in turn caused us anxiety. Maitland, who had a high pitch of enthusiasm, and brought a prediction from Assistant Secretary Division of the War Department that the two young aviators undoubtedly would be awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross."

When we landed we had enough fuel to stop at 6:29 a. m. Upon alighting they were greeted by Major-General Edward M. Lewis, commanding the Hawaiian Department of the army; Rear Admiral John D. McDonald, commanding the Fourteenth Naval District; Gov. Wallace Farrington and other prominent men.

In their flight from the Golden Gate to Hawaii, Maitland and Hegenberger cut approximately two-thirds from the previous fastest trip between these points.

This record was held by the light cruiser Omaha, which made the 2400-mile journey in May, 1925, in 75 hours, 40 minutes and 40 seconds, averaging 27.75 knots an hour.

The distance of the journey was more impressive by the fact that the flyers had to navigate 2400 miles to goal that was nothing but a relative speck in the ocean, compared with about 1500 miles of ocean flying that has been done by flyers across the North Atlantic between Europe and North America and 1500 miles across the South Atlantic between Africa and South America.

After the reception at the field the flyers were taken to the Honolulu Beach Hotel, where they bathed and ate breakfast and then talked to newspaper men and then to the public.

"We told them we would start our brief interview before he and his companion went to bed."

SHIP BEATS LETTER SENT BY PLANE ACROSS COUNTRY

Missive to Wife Mailed at San Francisco on Way to Brooklyn 20 Days.

NEW YORK, June 30.—New York is only two days from San Francisco by air mail, but Brooklyn is 20 days away, according to postmarks on a letter recently received by a resident of the Fort Hamilton district of Brooklyn.

On June 2 at 6:30 p. m. the sender mailed a letter in San Francisco. It was back stamped in New York as received at 8 p. m. June 4. Eighteen days later, June 22, at 10 p. m. it reached the Brooklyn Postoffice, after making the long and hazardous trip across the East River. From there the journey was comparatively rapid. The Fort Hamilton station of the postoffice marked the letter 6 a. m. June 23.

While the letter was waiting in Manhattan for a favorable wind to Brooklyn, the sender left San Francisco on a ship passing through the Panama Canal. He arrived and met his wife at the pier the same day she received his letter mailed from San Francisco and carried overland by plane. The postoffice made no explanation of the delay.

Regarding the radio beacon signals sent out to aid them by stations in San Francisco and Hawaii, Hegenberger, a technician of distinction, said:

"The radio beam is a success, but we were unable to make much use of it for the reason that our radio receiver went out of commission several times. However, when we were able to use the receiver, the radio beam signals came in very well."

Maitland expressed the opinion that the radio signal zone was much narrower than expected.

"It appeared to me so," agreed Hegenberger. "However, the radio beam proved of becoming tremendously valuable. We were able to get signals when eight or nine hours on our course."

Maitland estimated the Fokker's average speed at 115 miles an hour, but said he might correct this figure later.

They first picked up the land after flying for 25 hours, said Hegenberger. It was the island of Kauai, northwest of Oahu Island, of the Hawaiian group, on which they landed.

"I'll tell you it was pretty good to see it, too," said Maitland smiling. "We had not expected anything like that so early."

It indicated to them that they were on their course, Hegenberger said, and afterwards came the sunrise. The plane, Maitland said, flew easily and both were comfortable except for cold during the night.

Coolidge Cables Congratulations to Conquerors of Pacific. By the Associated Press.
HAWAII, June 30.—S. D. June 30.—Congratulating Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger on their successful flight to Honolulu, President Coolidge sent them this cablegram yesterday:

"I am glad to extend to you on behalf of our people hearty congratulations upon your fine achievement. You have added a new chapter to the brilliant history of American aviation of which we are proud. Your success marks a milestone in the art of flying, combining as it does the supreme skill of the pilot with the wonderful accuracy of the navigator, and achieves a striking evidence of the efficiency of our air forces."

Distinguished Flying Crosses Promised by Division. By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 30.—The successful flight to Hawaii of Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger stirred official Washington yesterday to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and brought a prediction from Assistant Secretary Division of the War Department that the two young aviators undoubtedly would be awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

After his resignation and the appointment of Walter G. Woods to succeed him had been announced at the Summer White House and by Secretary Mellon, Speelman insisted he had not resigned and had not definitely decided to do so.

He decided after looking into his rights to compensation under the Civil Service retirement law, he would accept retirement. He has been in the Treasury service 26 years.

$1,500,000 BOOK OFFER PRAISED BY DR. OTTO HELLER

Vollbeh's Proposal to Turn Over Rare Volumes, St. Louis' Greatest Opportunity of Kind, He Says.

WOULD GIVE CITY CULTURAL PRESTIGE

"No One Can Estimate Stimulus to Decorative Art by It," Washington U. Dean Declares.

"The greatest thing of its kind that ever came this way."

This is the view taken by Dr. Otto Heller, dean of the graduate school of Washington University, and expert on books, of the Vollbeh collection of 3000 Fifteenth Century books, which St. Louis has the opportunity to acquire as a permanent possession.

"Once St. Louis had two things to show to its visitors," Dr. Heller said. "They were the breweries and Shaw's Garden. The breweries have gone, and Shaw's Garden is gone. The Vollbeh collection, if permanently located in St. Louis would become as famous as either of these old time attractions, and would draw not only scholars, but the general public."

Dr. Vollbeh's offer. As told in the Post-Dispatch last week, Dr. Otto H. P. Vollbeh of Berlin, owner of the collection, values it at $2,000,000—a valuation which Dr. Heller believes to be justified by the market prices of such books as the Fifteenth Century books are called. Dr. Vollbeh has spent 23 years, and a sum which he estimates at $2,000,000, in collecting the books.

The most recent item of the collection, added only last year, is a Gutenberg Bible on parchment, the last one obtainable outside museum collections, for which Dr. Vollbeh paid an Austrian monastery $125,000, with an added sum of $25,000 to the Austrian Government and $6000 commissions, making its cost $200,000.

Dr. Vollbeh wishes that the collection be kept permanently as a unit under his name. He lately refused an offer of $2,100,000 from dealers, partly because he considered the offer too small, but chiefly because he was unwilling to let the collection be broken up, and his work in assembling it forgotten.

Dr. Vollbeh, as told last week, has offered to make his collection over to any city, or to any university, or to a museum or library in the Middle West, where another person or persons will share the benefit with him by paying him $150,000, one-half his estimate of the value of the collection. He would stipulate that the collection be kept permanently as a whole, and that it be known as the Vollbeh collection. The person to whom the gift would attach his own name to the donation, or to a building or hall in which the collection should be displayed.

Dr. Vollbeh, who has been at Hotel Gowerth, went to New York today. A selected group of 100 incunabula from his collection was exhibited recently in the Art Museum, and was seen by many St. Louisans, including thousands of the Lindbergh Sunday afternoon throng of June 25, at Art Hill.

"I have examined carefully the 150 volumes displayed here," Dr. Heller said, "and I have looked through Dr. Vollbeh's catalogue of the remainder of his collection. Large as the sum of $2,000,000 seems to most of us, I am convinced that it is not an excessive valuation for this wonderful collection, and that any city which gets it for $1,500,000 will be getting it at half price. This is true whether the collection is considered as a whole or as the sum of its units. The fact that Mr. Huntington paid $1,250,000 for collection of 2000 incunabula, largely from Dr. Vollbeh's duplicates, points to the much greater value of this collection."

"What I would like to see would be the acquisition of this collection for the city of St. Louis, or some institution here, and its installation in a separate building, apart from any other collection of attraction. It deserves to be set off in this manner, and such museum would perpetuate the name of the person who provided it, as well as the name of the original collector."

"The books should be displayed in such a manner as to reveal their sharing of the gift, and their varied contents to those who viewed them repeatedly. They should not be always open at the same place. Scholars and students would doubtless be permitted to handle the volumes, as is the case with other large collections of this kind. Even at the Vatican library, accredited scholars are permitted to handle the precious books and manuscripts.

Studies in Decorative Art. "No one can estimate the stimulus which would be given to the decorative arts by having these books as a public possession. It must be remembered that the Fifteenth Century books were not printed from standardized type like ours, but that type was handmade for each book, and that the printed books were in gold and color, and the previous hand-drawn and illuminated volumes. 'Copy' was followed religiously, even mistakes which the printer knew to be mistakes."

"There are single pages in many of these books that would furnish motives for a year's work in the decorative arts. If I were in the wall paper business, for instance, I would wish no finer source of ideas."

The same is true of textiles, tapestries and stained glass. "To make the collection of its greatest value, there should be lectures by experts on the things it contains—by theologians on the religious volumes and by scholars in history and in the customs and manners of the Fifteenth Century period, on the very interesting works which deal with romance, and with the geographic and medical science of the time."

"A building containing the Vollbeh collection would become to St. Louis what the Museum City is to Paris—a source of endless inspiration for the fine arts. To possess such a collection would tend to make St. Louis a center of the publishing industry in its finest grades. Think what it would be to our printers and binders to have available the best specimens of ancient printing, and of both ancient and modern binding—of some of these works are in modern bindings which are of the highest artistic value."

Dr. Vollbeh's offer, made primarily to St. Louis, but available to any city or institution in the Middle West, was made to this section because it is the part of the United States which now possesses no such collection. The East has the Morgan collection and those of Yale and other universities, and the Pacific Coast has the Henry Edwards Huntington collection, the property of Los Angeles County, Cal., by the recent bequest of Mr. Huntington.

NAVAL EXPERTS AT GENEVA PARLEY REACH ACCORD ON DESTROYER SIZE

Virtual Agreement on Ratio Between United States, Britain and Japan Also Reported.

TWO CLASSIFICATIONS FOR SHIPS ADOPTED

British First Lord of Admiralty Says His Country Has No Thought of Supremacy.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, June 30.—An agreement to limit the maximum size of destroyers was reached today at a meeting of the naval experts of the tripartite conference. The experts also discussed the question of ratio in the number of destroyers as between the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

It is understood that an accord was virtually reached on the ratio for destroyers, but the experts declined to announce the figures.

The maximum size of destroyers is understood to have been fixed at 1500 tons, a line of demarcation being drawn between destroyers and destroyer leaders.

The official communique, given out this afternoon, confined itself to saying that a "provisional agreement was reached as to the characteristics of destroyers and destroyer leaders for future construction."

The communique also added that the question of submarines will be discussed tomorrow.

A new and decidedly hopeful development of the conference is the disavowal by W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty, that Great Britain ever had any intention of disputing the right of the United States to have complete equality with Britain in all types of warships. The disavowal was made in a statement to the Associated Press.

"The statement of Bridgeman was the dominating topic of discussion in conference circles today. It was felt generally that Bridgeman's disavowal of any British intention to seek naval supremacy over America, would increase immeasurably the chances of success of the conference."

At the request of the international correspondents here the British delegation today gave out Bridgeman's statement for transmission to papers in various parts of the world.

Before Bridgeman gave out his statement, there appeared no doubt that the British delegation was convinced of the impossibility of rediscussing the Washington naval treaty at the present juncture, unless "the United States agreed."

The Washington agreement embodied an arrangement for limiting capital warships, and the contention of the American delegates has been that the British intention to seek naval supremacy over America, would increase immeasurably the chances of success of the conference.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Wells and Sacco-Vanzetti.

It is surprising that so little attention has been paid by American newspapers to H. G. Wells' recent broadcast on the Sacco-Vanzetti case in the London Sunday Express. Mr. Wells has long been known to be in sympathy with the two men imprisoned in Dedham jail and sentenced to die in July. The extent of his sympathy is now revealed.

This article may become as famous as Emma Zola's scorching indictment in the Dreyfus case—"J'accuse." In it Mr. Wells launches a veritable thunderbolt against those responsible for the plight of Sacco and Vanzetti. He pays a fine tribute to Prof. Felix Frankfurter's book, "The Case of Sacco and Vanzetti," goes on to analyze in detail "this abominable business," and asserts that "the evidence for the presence of the two accused men upon the scene of the murder is conclusive." Not only Judge Webster Thayer but the Prosecuting Attorney, Katzmann, is mercilessly flayed by Mr. Wells. Sacco and Vanzetti, he says, were not so much tried as "hailed" by the court. "Mr. Katzmann's idea of fair play allowed him to ask these poor devils whether they loved the United States, whether they thought the United States a free country, whether they were disappointed by the United States, whether they subscribed to newspapers likely to be distasteful to the jury, whether they were sympathetic with anarchists, and so forth, and so on, and Judge Thayer, instead of kicking a prosecution of this quality back to the proper charged, aided and abetted these foul proceedings." Mr. Wells closes a few words, "Thayerism," to express "the self-righteous unrighteousness of established people." He calls Judge Thayer "Supper Mundt," the amazement of the civilized world," by reason of his attitude. The culmination of the article, which must be read in its entirety to be fully appreciated, is this: "The facts of the case are now so patent and so widely known that no American citizen from the President downward who studies the evidence has any excuse for pretending to believe that Sacco and Vanzetti had hand or part in the Braintree murder. The case has passed out of the purview of courts and persons and become a challenge to every American citizen. The fact, plain and clear, of starting the world in the face, cleared of all pretensions and pretenses, is that the greatest, most powerful and modern State in the world is now confronted with the question whether it will or will not send these men to be killed upon a false accusation because of their political views."

Commercialization of "Mother's Day."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I HAVE before me an editorial clipped from the Post-Dispatch a recent date entitled "The Perversion of Mother's Day," which I wish might be reprinted and read by all mothers. I really believe they would be only too glad to insure their children to discontinue the extravagant giving this day has come to mean, against which this letter by one mother is a protest.

I have three grown children, who from earliest remembrance have never failed in their love, devotion, thoughtfulness, and consideration for and generous giving to me. I, therefore, refuse to allow them to be victimized into believing that they are disloyal to me and to my faith in the year, set aside by commercial interests, to allow the propaganda sent out to influence them and force them into a position abhorrent to themselves and to me.

I have obtained their promise that on another commercial "Mother's Day" they will ignore it in so far as buying me an expensive gift is concerned. I already possess what they have all given me—their love—more precious than any gift, a flower which blooms eternally in my heart, and sweeter than any affection the world could manufacture.

"MOTHER."

Eagle or Dove?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that the spontaneous enthusiasm inspired by the transatlantic flights has somewhat subsided, we have time to contemplate the possible effects they may have aside from purely commercial ones. Let us temporarily relinquish the problems of transoceanic possibilities to the renewed principles and the back of it. Let us rather to thoughts of more indirect possibilities. We are led to this thought: Is the airplane to be an eagle of war or a dove of peace? Proponents of national defense will cry loudly for increased appropriations for construction of bigger and better war birds. Those inclined toward world peace leagues are already attributing directly to these daring acts the welding of friendship between the great nations of the world.

This initial enthusiasm seems to be a comparatively weak reason for such a far-reaching assumption. True, honor has been shown where honor was due. The flights were inspirational. They captured the imagination of the world. Race, creed and nationality have blended into one to pay homage to the deeds. That lasting friendship between the nations has blossomed forth after lying so long dormant seems too great an accomplishment to attribute even to such feats.

BYRD'S SCIENTIFIC VENTURE.

Following the successful flight of Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger to Honolulu, all reports so far received indicate that Commander Byrd and his three associates in the America are on the other side of the Atlantic, heading towards Paris.

With these two flights ocean flying is still a daring feat requiring high courage and skill, but the romance is out of it. Lindbergh's lone nonstop flight was a romantic adventure. It proved that one man in a plane could fly across the ocean, from New York to Paris. Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger made their flight to Honolulu in an army transport monoplane, under the auspices of the Army, and after carefully calculated preparations by army experts. Commander Byrd's flight with three associates is a scientific expedition, designed not only to demonstrate that a loaded plane can make the flight, but to explore the wind currents of the Atlantic.

When Commander Byrd started, he put aside all impressions that he was embarking merely on a daring venture. He said he was going to prove the practicability of flying the ocean with a passenger-carrying plane, and to study the ocean winds and their effect on transoceanic aviation. The element of daring adventure is secondary.

Commander Byrd's story, which the Post-Dispatch will publish exclusively in this city, will not merely be a tale of high personal adventure in the air, but it will present scientific data which is expected to be helpful to transatlantic aviation. One of his messages indicates that he is obtaining instructive and interesting data.

If skill, courage, resourcefulness and experience in daring flights over unknown lands and seas can overcome any obstacles that may arise on the course of the America, Commander Byrd will conquer them. He has able, daring and accomplished associates to help him out. The heart and hope of the world are with him in his great venture.

HAPPY DETROIT.

Unlike the average American city, which is in inextricable conflict with its public utilities, Detroit has no trouble with them because she grants them no franchises.

A public utility in Detroit operates upon a temporary agreement with the city. This is true of the gas, electric and telephone utilities. The street railway utility belongs to the city. Like our own waterworks, it might be a shining exception to the turmoil, exploitation, high finance and all-around shenanigan which characterize the granting and possession of franchises to public utilities. If it were not that the privately owned utilities in Detroit have no franchises. They, too, are shining examples of what every big city might have if it would. Detroit refuses to tie herself up with public utility corporations on bad terms. She has adopted the temporary expedient of permitting the privately owned utilities to operate under short-term permits. Apparently she is looking toward municipal ownership of all her utilities, or she may eventually give some of them franchises. Until she determines what she will do she holds the utilities at arm's length and will not tie herself up with any of them.

The consequence is that there are no such spectacles in Detroit as one sees in so many parts of the country, where a weak legal delegation from some city huris itself upon the swords of the crack lawyers representing the utility in a valuation or a rate dispute. In Detroit there is an arbitration committee which makes the rates. It satisfies both the corporations and the people.

This is the kind of leadership St. Louis needs. Until she has it she will never be the sensible and happy city Detroit is, and will not be able to work out her own plans for utilities.

DELMERRILY SPEAKING.

Delmerrily speaking, if so we may say, the crossing dispute has at last found its way. The tumult and shouting, the blows and the shrieks, have somewhat subsided these two or three weeks. The prospect at present will cause no regret: the viaduct contract is soon to be let. Instead of fistfights and the hot smell of blood, the contractor's pliedriver now is to find Right merrily up and as happily down, a mighty fine thing in this war-weary world. An end to the war that with walls and with forts, with horse and with footmen, has toured all the courts. An end to mandamus, to writs, and to stays, to the wretched community pulling three ways, to the wild-eyed householder, the city in mail, and the war-making trainman upturning his wall. An end to the Wabash's thig way and that, and the people at length knowing where they are at.

Delmerrily speaking, O citizens, sing. Agreement has come, and we're done with the thing. In the sweet years to come, when the viaduct's there, when nothing remains of the River des Peres, when the old corkscrew curve is a thing of the past, and the park round the depot is flowered and grassed, when all things at last come out just as they should, we shall give thanks at last and say Allah is good.

THE SACCO-VANZETTI RESPIRE.

Gov. Fuller finds it impossible to complete his examination of the Sacco-Vanzetti case by July 10, and he has granted the two men a respite to Aug. 10. He desires plenty of time to study the voluminous record and to interview nearly 200 witnesses. He has also for the second time within a few weeks granted a respite to Celestino Madeiros, convicted murderer, who has confessed to the crime of which Sacco and Vanzetti were accused.

All of Gov. Fuller's actions in this case have been characterized by deliberateness. It is evident he is conscious of the fact that a vast audience on three continents is waiting to see what he will do. Sacco and Vanzetti's friends should accept this latest delay patiently, understanding that the Governor has been laden with heavy responsibility.

By Aug. 10, however, we hope he will have reached his conclusion. The Braintree murders took place in April, 1920, and Sacco and Vanzetti were arrested shortly afterward. They have been in custody for seven years. Their trial took place in 1921, consuming about three weeks, and for six years they have been under sentence of death. It has been a dreadful ordeal. Assuming they are finally released as innocent men, what can Massachusetts do to compensate for taking from them seven of their best years?

Count that day lost whose patient, lingering night Sees not some birdman in from some long flight.

BINGHAM ON CHINA.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, a reactionary at home, is indulging himself in the luxury of being a liberal abroad. He says the old days of foreign imperialism, extra-territoriality and special privileges in China are gone forever. He recognizes the revolution as a fact, and declares impossible the solution of Chinese problems by armed intervention of the Powers. He gives as the basic reason for this that in the Chinese mind all of China's troubles are due to foreign imperialism. "This thought is widespread and permanent," says Bingham, "and intervention can only increase it."

All this is well spoken. Bingham has approached Chinese affairs with an eye to the realities. In this respect he is different from the American Chamber of Commerce bloc at Shanghai, which has tied itself to the British tail and is trying to perpetuate the old diplomacy and the old rapacity in Chinese affairs. He is different, too, from the American Minister, Mr. Murray, who is impatient with our hands-off policy and evidently would have us tame the Chinese with fire and sword.

When Bingham returns to this country, he is going to tell President Coolidge what he thinks. He intends, so he says, to advocate the sending of commissioners to every functioning government in China seeking relations of virtual equality. These governments include those at Peking, Hankow, Nanking and Shansi. This is startling. Imagine an Old Guard Senator, who at home subscribes to the prevalent Republican philosophies, advising the President to have dealings with revolutionary governments, including the bolshevistic one at Hankow!

Bingham was interviewed at Hankow. We hope he doesn't change his mind on the long way home through Shanghai. We hope he goes straight to the Black Hills with his message. It is a truly American message and it is good for Bingham's soul. Not often does a politician of his affiliations revert to the former American policy of dealing sympathetically with the revolutionary aspirations of downtrodden peoples.

THE FLIGHT TO HAWAII.

The flight to Hawaii by Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger is the longest ocean voyage aviation has achieved, but that is scarcely so important as the assurance it gives that flyers can hit such a speck in the sea.

"Our compass is what got us here," says Lieut. Maitland. It was not, however, altogether for want of such a compass that Lieut. John Rodgers and his companions failed to reach the islands in 1925 and had the adventure of floating six days at sea. Their mishap probably resulted from the naval precaution of stationing a refueling ship on the route. In trying to locate that ship Lieut. Rodgers flew far enough to have gone to Hawaii. He finally ran out of gas some 200 miles short of his destination. He never found the refueling ship, and indeed did not need to be refueled.

Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger omitted that unfortunate precaution. They had nothing but the sea between them and Hawaii. It was a magnificent flight, and one upon which they have the congratulations of the nation.

The Italian flyer, Lieut. de Pinedo, thinks we are going to fly across the Pacific by way of the Bermudas. Perhaps we are going to fly across the Pacific by way of Hawaii and the innumerable isles beyond. If we are going to be able to hit those isles, the thing is done. There is not, at any rate, upon the route to Asia, another such expanse of water without islands as that between our Pacific coast and Hawaii, a distance of 2400 miles.

Wisconsin's legislative session hung on until all the members could drink of 2.75 beer on ice. The resolution is before the Governor.

A CELESTIAL FIZZLE.

The astronomers may get a kick from observing the Pons-Winnecke comet and describing its qualities, but to the general public it is a fizzle. In the first place a comet to please the popular fancy should be a large heavenly body with a flaming tail and it should present itself as traveling madly through the skies. It adds to the thrill if it should lurch now and then very close to the earth as though it were going to knock us into smithereens. The Pons-Winnecke comet may be traveling at an incredible speed, but it doesn't give that impression. Moreover, instead of being a celestial sunburst, it is vaguely and hazily formed, and there are millions of stars in the heavens more comely. This description, however, we get from the astronomers. It is mere hearsay. We have not been able yet to find the darn thing and judge for ourselves.

AT GIGGLESWICK.

It happened at Gigglewick. It was the last word in British puntology. Gigglewick is a town or something in Yorkshire, and it leaped laughingly into the news of the day by the accidental but indisputable fact that it was the center of the totality belt. In other words, it was the best place to see the eclipse.

But let us go on. Tens of thousands of Britishers were there gazing heavenwards as the shadow of the moon eased across the face of the sun. Instantly the British caught the idea. In the heavens the moon is the traditional underdog. If its glory is of silver the sun's is of gold. When the sun appears on the scene, the moon habitually fades away like a timid child frightened by a bully. This sort of thing has been going on for a very long time.

In a word, here positions were reversed. By dint of long and almost British perseverance, the moon was succeeding in obscuring the sun. Gigglewick was again. Think of the sun being blotted out by the moon. The totality lasted for 23 seconds, not long as heavenly time goes. Still it was a splendid moral victory.

This the British, who are famous for their savoir faire, saw instantly. And what did they do? They sent a round of cheers to the heavens, two rounds, three rounds. It was Gigglewick applauding the universe. Truly a charming reaction to a corking, one might say almost a topping, performance on the moon's part. Leave it to the British for knowing what to do at the time to do it.

The absorbing question now is not the production cost of the product but the reproduction cost of the plant.

WHERE AMERICA LEADS.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.
M. FARMER MURPHY, London correspondent of The Sun, cables today a survey of the tendency of Europe to assert its ancient liberties and go back to tyranny. A year ago there seemed to be reason to believe that good will was again coming to the fore in Europe. Now, on the other hand, England and Russia are ready to fly at each other's throats. France is once more making faces at Germany, and in all of these countries except Germany and Italy as well the dominant powers are those which are seeking to suppress and destroy the guarantees of free discussion which are the best product of the nineteenth century.

The change which has taken place is largely due, according to Mr. Murphy, to the activities of the die-hard group at present so strong in Britain. It was they who got themselves worked up to the point of making active threats against China. When they balked at this venture, they turned against Russia their pent-up hatreds and the raid on the Russia trade delegation's headquarters was an example of the length to which they are prepared to go. Add to this their effort to throttle the trade unions and the general belief that they are trying to hamstring the League of Nations and you have the chief causes in Mr. Murphy's indictment.

And, of course, it is true in every particular that the only weakness in it so far as we can see, is the statement that the curious hatred of freedom which is developing among the politicians in the various countries should be ascribed to the British die-hards. It is true that they are seeking to suppress human liberties. It is true that their activity is matched by similar tactics in Russia and by violence almost as striking in Italy.

But in none of these countries is the strong-arm method of suppression as highly organized and as deeply entrenched as it is in the United States. The United States, after all, is the only country in which tyranny is an essential part of the Government. The United States is the only country in which the dictators have been able effectively to bend all the powers of the Government and the courts to their schemes and to terrorize the politicians to such an extent that they must do their drinking in speak-easies.

The truth is that when it comes to tyranny and suppression the United States leads the world. The die-hards of England, the violent Bolsheviks and their blood brothers, the dictators of the Mussolini type, are but carrying out the methods of our own Anti-Saloon League.

YE ED'S WIFE IS BECOMING CHIC.

From the Skiston (Kan.) Standard.
O recent years the editorial meetings of the States have had a large attendance of the wives of the editors. In olden times, when we were a boy, if the editor attended a press meeting, it was on a railroad pass, all hotel and liquor bills thrown in—and a good time had by all. In those days it was seldom that the editor's wife had a dress fine enough to go away from home, if she had the opportunity.

They were the good old days when cordwood, turnips, potatoes and pumpkins were taken on subscription. At this date the papers are considered a real asset to the town and the publisher is on a business footing with other concerns and when his wife attends these meetings, she goes with just as good clothes as does the banker's wife or anybody else's wife.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT—HOW?

From the New York World.
PROHIBITION Commissioner Doran has acted quickly and correctly in not merely suspending Major Heise, accused of third-degree methods in enforcement work, but removing Major Mills as administrator of this zone and giving him an entirely different job. Major Heise has pretty well convinced himself, Major Mills has been under fire before in connection with the use of Mr. Bielaski's "undercover" men, and his value for at least this district has become highly dubious. If the successors of these two men do not profit from their errors they are very dull.

But there are others to whom the episode teaches a lesson, and it is a broader lesson than the mere unwisdom of using stool-pigeons, blackmail and violence in the name of the law. Once more it is shown that to try to enforce prohibition, in a community of 7,000,000 people who largely detect it with a tiny, underpaid, and ill-organized corps, is bound to result in undesirable phenomena. The law will become a farce. There will be widespread corruption among its agents. Heise used alleged third-degree methods to get at this corruption. Officers who can get nowhere with their duty by fair methods are forced to turn to foul procedure. Mr. Emory Buckner once told Congress how to avoid all this. It was by spending nearly $10,000,000 on this district alone, reorganizing the Federal Courts, hiring an adequate number of agents, marshaling them properly, and paying them decent salaries. But Congress would not accept a tithe of this program.

Honest enforcement would mean a bill of costs, political and financial, which the most ardent drys dare not look in the face. Hence, year after year, the dreary illustrations of dishonest enforcement.

GEORGE ELIOT AND HER TIMES: A VICTORIAN STUDY
By Elizabeth Haldane (Appleton)

IT IS QUITE probable that the name of George Eliot was pronounced to 10,000 people, average intelligence, with the understanding that each was to learn his first response thereon. The name of George Eliot would include more or less a vague sense of something "shabby" about the lady's mien. It would be mingled with a comprehensive sense of "restraint," in most cases unrelated to any very definite knowledge of the lady's achievements; but the moral shadow would be there, in most instances, however vaguely felt. Such is the curious thing called fame, again which so many philosophers have spoken eloquently—in the hope of attaining it!

Perhaps some will take up the study of a great woman with the unconfessed but nevertheless a tentative hope of finding something of a scandalous scandalous there. And the hope seems not unreasonable, considering the prevalence of Freudian "criticism." No doubt by means of an adroit isolation, certain facts in George Eliot's life and a clever misinterpretation of passages selected from her work, something juicy could be invented. But Elizabeth Haldane was evidently concerned with George Eliot and what she did, not with any desire to impress the reader with her own superior brilliance. The result will prove a real disappointment for the sensationalist.

What we have here is a full length portrait, evidently drawn with scientific accuracy against the background of a period vividly realized. There are no sentimental highlights and shadows cast by the biographer's personality. Here are the clear, definite and the firmness of line that characterize a Haldane drawing; and the book is left with the feeling that one has seen George Eliot very much as she was in life. But it is not to be inferred that the work is merely factual and scholarly, and therefore dull. The stuff with which Miss Haldane has worked is in itself fascinating, and it is evident that she has brooded long and lovingly over it, seeking out those subtle relations which give life and meaning to facts.

The study begins with an examination of the social situation, the novelist's time and a comparison of our own persuasions with those then in vogue. In the examination of her own childlike and young womanhood, the biographer reads no prophetic meaning into trivial details, as is so often done. There are vivid chapters on early literary associations and, when the future novelist had no thought of ever writing fiction, but regarded herself as a critic and translator. A chapter is given to the discussion of each of the novels and one to the poetry.

CHICAGO SCHOOL TEACHERS

FACE SALARY REDUCTION

President of Board Says Deficit of $4,500,000 May Require 20 Per Cent Cut.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 29.—The salaries of Chicago's public school teachers may be cut 20 per cent, starting in September, President J. Lewis Cook of the School Board said today.

Lack of sufficient funds, he said, will compel either the closing of the schools for two months or the cutting of salaries, and he added that "the schools will not be closed as long as I am president of the School Board."

The schools face a deficit of $4,500,000, it was pointed out, and a 20 per cent reduction in all teachers' salaries would approximate this.

"The crisis is dire," Coach explained, "to the teachers themselves, who, through their representative, Miss Margaret Haley, are needed in blocking in the Legislature the bill of Mayor Thompson, which would have permitted the transfer of 40 per cent of the school building fund to the educational fund."

An Excellent Biography

GEORGE ELLIOT AND HER TIMES: A VICTORIAN STUDY. By Elizabeth Haldane. (Appleton.)

IT IS QUITE probable that if the name of George Eliot were pronounced to 10,000 people of average intelligence, with the understanding that each was to set down his first response thereto, in 9999 cases the first flash of thought would include more or less vague sense of something "shady" about the lady's morals. It would be mingled with a compensating sense of greatness, in most cases unrelated to any very definite knowledge of the lady's achievements. But the moral shadow would be there, in most instances, however vaguely felt. Such is the curious thing called fame, against which so many philosophers have spoken eloquently—in the hope of attaining to it.

Perhaps one may take up this study of a great woman with the unconfessed but nevertheless active hope of finding something entertainingly scandalous therein. Any the hope seems not unreasonable, considering the prevalence of Freudian "criticism." No doubt, by means of an adroit isolation of certain facts in George Eliot's life and a clever misinterpretation of passages selected from her works, something juicy could be invented. But Elizabeth Haldane was evidently concerned with George Eliot and what she did, not with any desire to impress the reader with her own superior brilliance. The result will prove a sad disappointment for the sensationalists.

What we have here is a full length portrait, evidently drawn with scientific accuracy against the background of a period vividly realized. There are no temperamental highlights and shadows cast by the biographer's personality. Hers are the clear, of detail and the firmness of line that characterize a Holbein drawing; and the book is left with the feeling that one has seen George Eliot very much as she was in life.

But it is not to be inferred that the work is merely factually scholarly, and therefore dull. The stuff with which Miss Haldane has worked is in itself fascinating, and it is evident that she has brooded long and lovingly over it, seeking out those subtle relationships which alone give life and meaning to facts.

The study begins with an examination of the social situation of the novelist's time and a comparison of our own persuasions with those then in vogue. In the examination of her subject's childhood and young womanhood, the biographer reads no prophetic messages into trivial details, as is so often done. There are vivid chapters on early literary associations and efforts when the future novelist had no thought of ever writing fiction, but regarded herself as a critic and translator. A chapter is given to the discussion of each of the novels and one to the poetry.

As to George Eliot's private life it appears that if there was ever a woman who lived consistently on the highest moral plane and was plausibly wedded, it was she. Far from being a shady affair, her life with George Lewes seems to have been one of the most conspicuous examples of a perfect union on record. It was through no fault of theirs that a sane law governing divorce should have been tardily enacted; and it is significant that, as soon as the new law went into effect, the marriage that had then been a beautiful fact for some years, was duly solemnized in the most conventional manner. The idea of "free love" never was involved in the relationship, and no doubt many still suppose. As a matter of fact, George Eliot's attitude toward sex relationships would now be considered exceedingly straight-laced.

As to religious views, George Eliot, deemed unorthodox in her time and occasionally described as an "atheist," would now seem no more terrible than a Modernist of the latter type. She believed in Science, but was aware that what is deepest in human experience is not to be explained by the scientific method. She was profoundly sincere, as her life proved, when she spoke of "one comprehensive Church whose fellowship consists in the desire to purify and ennoble human life, and where the best members of all narrower Churches may call themselves brother and sister in spite of differences." It was the Church in which she worshipped both by words that live and deeds that are good to remember.

YOUR NERVOUS CHILD, by Edwin Wexburg, translated from the German by Dr. Walter Beran Wolfe (Albert & Charles Boni.) This interesting little book is one of the first bits of writing in English dealing with Dr. Alfred Adler's school of individual psychology. It is rather symptomatic that in a day when the individual is in greatest danger of being lost in the mass, this new school should have come.

This book is a serious attempt to understand the child. Parents should read it carefully. Teachers should really study it. The thesis in the book is not mere theory. It is based on facts, gleaned from actual experiences of Dr. Wexburg and Adler. The translator has collaborated with them in Vienna. The chapter on the "family constellation," or the family environment, is stimulating in that it brings out certain definite facts, which influence the life of the child.

The chapter on the cure of nervousness in children gives hints as to what may be done with certain situations. The book contains much common sense and much that will appear a bit new and strange. The translation is uncommonly good. Anyone knowing the intricacies of German composition must congratulate Dr. Wolfe for his excellent work. He has succeeded in eliminating as much Germanism as possible.

Dr. Wolfe is a native of St. Louis, graduate of Washington University, and judging by what he has accomplished for one so young, there is a brilliant future for him. He is the son of Dr. Alexander S. Wolfe of St. Louis.

VANDERBILTS SILENT ON DAUGHTER'S WEDDING

Henry G. Davis III Takes Bride to Kootenay Lake, B. C., on Honeymoon.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 30.—Henry Gassaway Davis III and his bride, the former Miss Grace Vanderbilt, today are en route to Kootenay Lake, British Columbia, on their honeymoon.

The couple had waited since their surprise marriage Tuesday for the blessing of the bride's parents, Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, but failed to hear from them, said Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., brother of the bride.

An unidentified friend loaded their baggage on a train late last night at Grand Central Terminal and the couple got aboard at the 125th street station.

The couple were married by a Deputy City Clerk at the Municipal Building Tuesday and were later married at the Little Church Around the Corner. The church ceremony was held, reports said, in an effort to obtain parental forgiveness.

Davis, a mining engineer, was said to have worked at Kootenay Lake in connection with the Armstead Ventures, Inc., with which he is identified.

TOURISTS CROWD TO COOLIDGE CAMP

Autos Loaded With Household Effects Pour Into Black Hills.

By the Associated Press.
RAPID CITY, S. D., June 30.—

The Summer White House is becoming the hub of a new community in the Black Hills. Tents and cabins are going up among the birches bordering the main streams near the State Game Lodge. Along Squaw Creek around the bend from the lodge a community center is being rushed to completion.

A steady stream of tourists from states near and far is coming into the hills in automobiles loaded with household effects, and nearly all like to pause for a night amid the mountains in the shadow of the Summer White House.

The White House family itself comprises a little community, housed as it is in cabins and tents near the game lodge.

The President came to his office from his mountain residence yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge. Together they reviewed a detachment of cavalry en route to Fort Meade, S. D., and after several hours at the executive offices, they returned to the lodge for luncheon.

Mr. Coolidge did not tarry long on the front porch, however, since he had missed several days at Squaw Creek and soon he called for Cecil Glendon, his South Dakota guide and companion and the two set forth on a fishing expedition. The White House calling list is being augmented daily and Mr. Coolidge's daily trips to Rapid City are expected to continue. There was an indication that the next visitor would be Ambassador Sheffield, who recently returned from Mexico and while it was said he might arrive Friday or Saturday, no definite information had been received.

CHICAGO SCHOOL TEACHERS

FACE SALARY REDUCTION

President of Board Says Deficit of $4,500,000 May Require 20 Per Cent Cut.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 30.—The salaries of Chicago's public school teachers may be cut 20 per cent, starting in September, President J. Lewis Coath of the School Board said today.

Lack of sufficient funds, he said, will compel either the closing of the schools for two months or the cutting of salaries, and he added that "the school will not be closed as long as I am president of the School Board."

The schools face a deficit of $4,500,000, it was pointed out, and a 20 per cent reduction in all teachers' salaries would approximate this sum.

"The crisis is due," Coath explained, "to the teachers themselves, who, through their representative, Miss Margaret Haley, succeeded in blocking in the Legislature, the bill of Mayor Thompson, which would have permitted the transfer of 40 per cent of the school building fund to the educational fund."

Winners of this year's Howard prizes, announced by President W. J. Hutchins, are: Earl Turner, Wooten, Ky., $20; Ellen Clarkston, Louisville, Ky., $20; Shaffer Davidson, Louisville, Ky., $20; Ernest L. Lowman, Dalton, Ga., $10; Sophia Johnson, Rockford, Ky., $10; Mattie J. Turner, Alto, Ky., $10; Finley R. Lawson, Valeria, Ky., $10; Blanche Baugh, Lubank, Ky., $10; Sylvia R. In the last year the students earned nearly $120,000 in labor credits, or nearly three-quarters of their school expenses, without leaving the campus.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 29.—A rare Egyptian vase which, according to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, is thought to date at least to the fifteenth century, was recently discovered by D. L. Recently he sent it to Washington for appraisal.

SENTENCE OF SLAYER OF BOY WHO PESTERED HIM COMMUTED

Oklahoma Says Governor's Leniency Is Only Punishment for Him.

By the Associated Press. OKLAHOMA, June 30.—Refused death in the electric chair as he had requested, C. E. Marble, 62-year-old recluse, convicted of the slaying of a boy who "pestered him," today declared the Governor was only punishing him by commuting the sentence to life imprisonment.

"If I had my way, or any rights in the matter, I would choose the chair," declared Marble. "I would have 'toned' in a short time. I dread life imprisonment."

Marble was convicted of killing Gilbert Hutchinson, December 26, last. He refused to appeal and was sentenced to the electric chair. July 29, last, but Gov. Johnson yesterday commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

ACTRESS KILLED IN FILM STUNT
Tom Mix Unable to Rescue Ethel Hall in Rapids Scene.

By the Associated Press. MERCED, Cal., June 30.—Miss Ethel Hall, double for Dorothy Dwan, moving picture heroine, was fatally injured when she was swept from a boat in the Merced River and dashed against a boulder in the rapids during the filming of a Tom Mix thriller. Miss Hall died of a fractured skull.

Miss Hall was scheduled to be abandoned by the movie villain in an open boat and to be rescued by Mix as she neared the river rapids. Before the "rescue" was staged the boat overturned and she was swept into the rapids and dashed against a boulder. An actual rescue followed, but not in time to save her life.

fact, and the other having six-inch guns. The Americans have shown not the slightest disposition to agree to the British suggestion that cruisers in future be limited to 7500 tons and have six-inch guns.

Under the British plan such limitation would depend on an agreement as to the number of 10,000-ton cruisers allocated to Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

Denies Using "Big Stick."
Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, repudiated a statement in a Geneva newspaper, that in his recent conversation with Viscount Ishii of Japan, he wielded "the big stick," after the manner of Roosevelt, and that the interview was violent.

"My conversations with Viscount Ishii," said Gibson, "were marked by complete friendliness. Nothing occurred which could be construed as a threat or a manifestation of bad temper. Viscount Ishii's attitude was marked by his habitual distinguished courtesy, and I hope you will give me credit for not resorting to such bungling methods as alleged."

The interview in question was that in which the head of the Japanese delegation referred to the possibility of Japan siding with the British in discussing the question of capital ships.

American Delegate Officially Informed of British View.
By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 30.—Great Britain's full acceptance of American parity on the seas has been officially conveyed to Ambassador Gibson, head of the American delegation at the Geneva naval conference, by W. C. Bridgeman, British first lord of the admiralty, and Lord Robert Cecil, Secretary of State, was informed today by Mr. Gibson.

The Ambassador reported that the British spokesman assured him that there was no doubt in their minds or in that of the British Government of America's right to parity in all classes of ships and that all negotiations should be conducted on that basis.

Bridgeman and Cecil said they desired to clear up an apparent misunderstanding of the British attitude.

ish demand that the naval conference discuss capital ships in worthless, according to the French viewpoint. The French, who are participating in the conference only as observers, have told Viscount Cecil of Great Britain and Viscount Salto of Japan that it is inadvisable to consider revision of the Washington treaty. If the France is disinterested in the United States, Great Britain and Japan extend the Washington treaty among themselves, but would not consent to alterations affecting other signatories of the treaty.

The conference has found an easy tentative agreement on Geostroyers. The maximum gun size will be five inches and the tonnage of the leaders probably will be 1500, with line ship tonnage at 1200 to 1400.

AL ST. JOHN HELD FOR ALIMONY

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, June 30.—Al St. John, film comedian, today faced a charge of failure to support his 5-year-old daughter, who has been in the custody of Mrs. Lillian St. John, since she obtained a divorce, in 1923, on a charge of cruelty. She was awarded $150 a month alimony. St. John surrendered to the sheriff's office yesterday when he was informed a warrant for his arrest had been issued.

St. John married June Price Pierce in July, 1926. The warrant was issued by the San Diego authorities when it became known the film comedian contemplated a trip to Europe with Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, film comedian. He furnished bond and then was released.

TRADE CONDITIONS
SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Federal Reserve Business Review Indicates Gain Over Preceding Month.

Trade and industry in the Eighth Federal Reserve District showed marked improvement during the last 30 days over the preceding month, although faced with "very uncertain" prospects for agriculture, the aftermath of a serious flood, and continued unfavorable weather, according to the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, made public today.

The bettered conditions are revealed largely by the reports of railroads operating in the district, which showed the largest volume of freight traffic on record for this season of the year. St. Louis Terminal Railway Association Interchanged 213,530 loads in May compared with 199,951 in April and 224,488 in May, 1926. Passenger traffic of the reporting lines decreased 5 per cent in May from the corresponding month last year. Estimated tonnage of the Federal Barge Line between St. Louis and New Orleans for May was 99,500 tons against 93,605 in May, 1926.

Flood Retarded Trade.
Reports from virtually all sections of the district agree that unreasonable weather and excessive rainfall were the chief obstacles to business and agricultural operations. In some sections planting of spring crops was two to four weeks behind schedule, but farmers are expected to regain most of the lost time if they have reasonably favorable weather. Flood rehabilitation in the district by the Red Cross, railroads and municipalities is being pushed forward rapidly and the outlook for late summer and fall business is "much brighter" than seemed possible a month ago.

Among industries in which investigation showed improvement were boots and shoes, clothing, drug and chemicals, groceries, furniture, fire clay products, packing, lumber, and certain iron and steel products. Textile mills were for the most part on full time and good gains in employment were shown by cement works, lumber mills, railroad shops and beverage factories.

Collections Steady.
Recessions were recorded in building activities and distribution of automobiles. Department store sales showed a marked decrease, compared with a year ago, and in wholesale lines smaller sales were reported by hardware, electrical supply, flour and stationary interests.

Developments in the coal situation did not indicate anxiety by consumers, although the strike of bituminous miners is now in its third month.

Reported collections in the last 30 days showed no marked change in conditions existing last month.

NOTE: If all the extra Billionarea homes reached by the Post-Dispatch in excess of any other St. Louis newspaper were combined in one section, it would be equivalent to the 25 square miles of solidly built residence section shown above.

The Billionarea
The Greater St. Louis Market

The Billionarea is the Greater St. Louis Market as it actually exists and as officially designated by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Its boundary is simply the physical limits of metropolitan St. Louis on both the Missouri and Illinois sides of the Mississippi. It includes all (and only) that area where concentration of People, Dollars and Coverage (P+D+C) offers a volume market at low cost for advertisers.

Can advertisers afford to ignore this much of The Billionarea?

The Billionarea is the concentrated market of Greater St. Louis, with over a million people earning and spending more than a billion dollars a year.

Every square mile of it contains an average of over 6000 people—as many people as 160 square miles in the small town and rural areas outside. Every square mile of The Billionarea produces an average of $8,800,000 in income—as much as 500 square miles outside. Every square mile of The Billionarea has as many stores as 210 square miles outside.

Can any advertiser afford to ignore 25 such square miles so crowded with people and buying power, in this Billionarea market? Can any advertiser afford to lose the sales that can be secured through reaching from 120,000 to 320,000 more people in The Billionarea—(30,000 to 80,000 more families)?

120,000 more people reached

That is what the excess circulation of the Post-Dispatch, over any other St. Louis newspaper, means to advertisers, reaching 30,000 more homes daily and 80,000 more homes Sunday in The Billionarea than any other newspaper.

These facts have a definite bearing on the advertiser's problems of moving the greatest volume of merchandise at the lowest possible sales and advertising cost.

On the advertising side of that problem, there are only two basic facts to search out: (1) What part of the total circulation of the newspaper is concentrated in the metropolitan area, where selling costs are low and purchasing powers high? (2) How completely does the newspaper cover that area?

A big extra market at no extra cost

The circulation of the daily Post-Dispatch is largely concentrated in the metropolitan district of Greater St. Louis, The Billionarea. With this one newspaper alone, you can cover practically every home of purchasing consequence in The Billionarea at one low advertising cost.

It is impossible to reach anywhere near as many Billionarea homes through any other St. Louis newspaper or through any combination of newspapers without duplication of circulation and addition of unnecessary advertising cost.

In only two or three other metropolitan markets in America is there such an ideal combination of concentrated market of high purchasing power, with complete coverage by one newspaper, at an exceptionally low milline rate.

That is the advertiser's opportunity in The Billionarea. That is the advertiser's opportunity in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It is easy to understand why the Post-Dispatch carries more advertising—local, national and classified combined—than the second and third St. Louis newspapers added together.

There's a New Taste
in Town

It's the tempting taste of Heinz Sandwich Relish.

This new relish makes just about the best sandwiches you ever ate. And they may be kept fresh and good for hours after you make them. Heinz Sandwich Relish is delicious as a stuffing for eggs or tomatoes. Or spread on crackers. Or served with fish, or cold meats. Or combined with a little Heinz Ketchup or Chili Sauce to make Thousand Island Dressing. The minute you try it, you'll think of a dozen more ways to use it.

Heinz Sandwich Relish is made from chopped crisp, sweet pickles and other good things mixed with smooth, rich mayonnaise.

And it is "made by Heinz".

You know that means good to eat.

Security for a Safe Investment

The Right Building in the Right Location

LOCATION is of utmost importance in the consideration of first mortgage real estate financing.

Good location means good earning power—good transportation facilities—good light and air. The right location, improved with the proper type of building, is the best assurance of ample income to meet the interest payments and also to reduce substantially the amount of the mortgage outstanding.

The right location, too, means increasing land value, and a continuous high average of occupancy and rentals.

The first mortgage bonds we offer are secured by properties centrally located in the leading cities of the country, where building needs are most urgent; earnings most certain; margins of safety most secure, and appreciation of values most likely.

New York Sugar.
NEW YORK, June 30.—The raw-sugar market was quiet early today, as French business reported. Prices advanced at 4-32c for Cuban duty-free sugar, but declined 1-32c for the remainder, a depressing effect in the raw-sugar market and led to active buying of refined sugar. The decline of the latter months for both Cuban and European interests accounted for the loss of values which at midday were 1-32c above the previous close. The fact that refiners were showing no other interest at last paid prices, and that they regarded the refined sugar as a factor in the decline.
Prices for refined sugar was unchanged at 10c for fine stranded, but was 1-16c higher for the remainder.
Futures closed barely steady. A market sales: July 2.60; sales; July 2.61; September 2.70; December 2.74.

AFTER BLACK RUST REPORT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Wheat prices climbed rapidly at times today owing to reports of black rust in South Dakota spring wheat. A few of the spring wheat double harvest, however, and with the State Legislature still in session at Springfield, there was a disposition to act quickly and as a result the dollar quotations were not maintained.

Wheat closed unsettled 34c to 35c higher; corn 3/4c off to 1 1/2c up; clover 3/4c to 1c advance and soybeans at 12c to 40c gain.

Black root infection of many fields spring wheat between Yanston and Shell, S. D., was reported today. It is stated specifically that this wheat is headed out and that the rust ranges from

The near fallacy is a slight twist on the much more familiar "flood of prices for wheat" story. It is a likewise word that Southern Hemisphere areas does not suggest a liberal yield, and a European requirements promise to pare closely those of the year now closing.

But weather had a beneficial effect on a number of crops at times as more than a counterbalance to the drought. It is contended, too, in some quarters that it is selling at a level where it cannot be used profitably either on the farm or commercial channels.

ou looked us over the first time?" I said. "Well, your excuse is that you're going to school. Where is the baby going?" She said, "He isn't going any place. He just needed a haircut."

I said, "He didn't need to be haircuted." Joan said, "What's wrong with his haircut? I'd like to know?" and I said, "What's wrong with a haircut? It just looks like hell, that's all."

Joan said, "I won't have you wearing in front of the baby," and I said, "Well, I won't have you ruining my child by making him look more like a sissy than he looks naturally, with that curly hair." She said, "Every mother I know is jealous of his curls," and I said, "You haven't heard my father crying themselves to sleep about it. How much did they charge you to cut his hair?" he said, "Thirty-five cents," and said, "They would have given him a he-man's haircut for the same money."

Joan said, "Do you realize this child isn't eight months old yet?" I said, "You're darn right I realize it, and it's a dirty trick to take advantage of him just because he's little," and I will be glad when he is eight years old on account of if she tries to make him get his hair cut then, why she will get a surprise, and she will wish she had not forced him to be so tough in self-defense.

Mummy Jewelry Is New.
Evidently Egyptian is the inspiration responsible for the new "mummy" jewelry, which is shown in necklaces, bracelets, earrings and pins for either ear or shoulder. Hand-carved of stone or glass-like composition, tiny mummy-like statues, mounted on metal bases, are used as pendants on earrings, necklaces or bracelets. Some of the slender link chains, upon which these charms or pendants hang, are plain and sometimes set in stones to match the wee figure.

WOMEN ARE THEY.
Women are they who stand in humble doorways.
Watching the trail for weary steps at noon.
Women are they who stand with sons in arms.
Flinging brown seed in furrows at sundown.
Women are they who bravely smile at dawn.
When blooming crops stand withered in the frost.
Women are they, for their name shall remain
Loving remembrance in hearts of stalwart men.

We Ask to Know.
The courts have just decided that giggling in a movie is no just cause for ejection. What we've never been able to understand is why either giggling or talking in a movie is just cause for ejection.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER.

SEVERAL hundred men, young and old and of the "butter-and-egg" type have reported to a Chicago research bureau the feminine atrocities in dress and appearance which incur disgust of men in general. In the catalogue of horrors of modern womankind the disapproving males list the following items:

Stockings with crooked seams, wrinkled about the ankles, and cotton tops.
Too much showing of fat or skinny legs.
Turned over heels and extremely high heels.
Boyish bob, make-up and perfume.
The debutante stoch.

Is that so? Well, suppose THE WOMAN OF IT informs these and other hypercritical gentlemen what women consider unattractive masculine dress and appearance. Some of the masculine atrocities in style are:

High, stiff linen collars that cut the throat and purple the countenance in hot weather.

Soft collars that melt into moist, smuggy wrinkles after an hour's wear.

Trousers so long and wide that they lie in furrows over the shoes.

Grease-slicked pompadours.

A red tie worn with violet socks.

Woolen garments in summer, especially vest.

Neckties striped in "club colors."

Heavy leather shoes in hot weather.

Sloppy ungartered socks.

The entirely hideous derby hat.

The general deadly monotony in color and cut of all men's garments.

The appalling sameness and somberness of their evening dress.

Shapeless plus fours.

Too much showing of bow legs, skinny legs, hairy legs, knock-knees, hollow chests, stooped shoulders, plump tummies, when men appear in bathing suits.

So there!

WHY COLLEGE MEN DISLIKE CO-EDUCATION.

Undoubtedly the real reason why the Dean of Madrid University is urging its women students to give up college and go home is the same "real reason"—as opposed to alleged reason—for the objection of Eastern college men to co-education.

Only 25 per cent of the students at the University of Madrid are women, but they walk off with the great majority of academic honors. The American woman who has been graduated from a co-ed college—we speak whereof we know—remembers that her sex gathered in most of the prizes and Phi Beta Kappa keys—the men, poor, self-sacrificing creatures, had to work for dear old Alma Mater on the football field and in the glue club.

Incidentally, reading of the objections by the Spanish Dean to college for women, and of the disapproval by Bavarian Bishops of athletic contests for women (on grounds of indecency), we realize that ours is still the land of the free woman—comparatively speaking.

WOMEN ARE THEY.
Women are they who stand in humble doorways.
Watching the trail for weary steps at noon.
Women are they who stand with sons in arms.
Flinging brown seed in furrows at sundown.
Women are they who bravely smile at dawn.
When blooming crops stand withered in the frost.
Women are they, for their name shall remain
Loving remembrance in hearts of stalwart men.

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.
Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has just given the National Museum, for its collection of costumes worn by President's wives, a beautiful white satin reception gown with a skirt touching the floor all around.

He Might Change His Mind.
Robert Sitwell, brilliant British novelist of the younger school, calls America more cultured than England, and a woman hopes he is right.

We Ask to Know.
The courts have just decided that giggling in a movie is no just cause for ejection. What we've never been able to understand is why either giggling or talking in a movie is just cause for ejection.

VALUES.
Somewhere the night like a court-tesan
Is trailing scarfs of twinkling skies,
But nothing matters when he seeks
The benediction of her eyes.

Somewhere tonight men grieve and long
For twilight cloisters of rest.
But nothing matters when he finds
The kind white shelter of her breast.

LUCIA TRENT.
Sir Oliver Lodge prophesies a laboratory man, made by science, and all we can say is that there's plenty of chance for science to improve on nature.

ROAMING AROUND ST. LOUIS

By FAY PROFFER.

DANCING and dining in mid air seems to hold fascination for hundreds who find a roof garden the happy solution of where to go and what to do for summer diversion. The Hotel Chase roof, swept by cool breezes and overlooking the fashionable West End is most attractive this summer in its bizarre decorations of orange and black and presents an air of cosmopolitan gaiety.

"These roof gardens seem to have gotten their message across with the elements. Isn't it a lovely night?"

"Nifty number Harry's dragging."

"Yes, she's a classy hooper, too."

"My dear, you simply don't keep up. They're merely friends now."

"There are three types of women. The unemotional type, the clinging vine type and the highly emotional type. Now you, my dear, are—"

"These fast dances do get me down, AND HOW!"

"I adore music. Now this Bach you spoke of, is he still composing?"

"Alas, I'm afraid he is decomposing."

"My dear, she's quite impossible. Forty if a day. Why, she was in my class at Smith and I am sure."

"There's the over there giving a dinner party. I hope I don't feel hurt."

"She bid five diamonds and tried to make it but we sure set her down plenty."

"So I just told him he was as weak as water and twice as wet as."

"How about joining the seething mob for a little dance, Sue?"

"Of course Bea CAN give a party without inviting me, but I have her to every party I give."

"I idolize Jack Gilbert. He is really a supreme lover."

"You're right, but he is so addicted to clutches he positively wears me."

"One finds it tremendously stupid in the city when all one's friends are away. I don't one."

"She'll never land him, he's much too busy for a trip to the altar."

"Why he didn't take any more than we did and look at the way he's acting? He's going around speaking to everybody."

"Really I think dinner parties are very boring but then Bea might have asked me as long as she was going to have the rest of the crowd."

"There's a waltz, Jpe. let's dance."

"Now, mamma, I told you when we came I wasn't going to dance. I got over that foolishness years ago and besides we're leaving early. I got a big conference on in the morning."

"Rot! Since when do you confer on the golf links?"

"She ALWAYS manages to get near that table. She must think she's heaven's gift to Summer Bachelors."

"That's dancing. Believe it or not."

"So this is a Roof Garden! Gee, wonder what the bunch is doing in Centerville?"

"And about that time I was becoming superlatively hazy."

"And to think I invited Bea to my tea only last week and here she has a big party with flowers on the table and everything."

"Doncha love to look down at the lights in the park? We're certainly up in the world now."

NEW YORK.—Reports from London state the claret and pressers of the British capital are rejoicing. MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

S. A. B.—There are many different kinds of skin eruptions which may appear on the face and due to widely different causes. It is practically impossible to determine any kind of skin eruption without an examination, even a minute description is less desirable for such purpose than an actual inspection, and appropriate treatment could only be advised after a correct diagnosis is made.

A. M. I.—Poor circulation of the blood will cause cold hands and feet when the health is not good. Try taking a tonic of elixir of iron, quinine and strychnine, in doses of a dessertspoon mixed with a wine glass of water after meals. Soak your limbs in very hot water, then drench with cold water and rub dry briskly with coarse towel. This treatment will stimulate the local circulation if repeated each night and morning.

VERY ANXIOUS.—The following ointment should reduce the breast. Take aristol, 2 drachms; white vaseline, 30 drachms; essence of peppermint, 2 drachms. Mix and rub in gently but thoroughly every night and then cover with compress, wet with the

The woman
I hope
I find an exciting story to lull me to sleep!
After what's happened to me, exciting stories are as rare as a wild bachelor who's been brought to the halter!

"AND SUDDENLY
THE FAIR ELAINE SCREAMED—OUCH!
CHERRIES!"

WHY THIS STORY IS ALL ABOUT A STENOGRAPHER WHO THOUGHT SANTA CLAUS WAS A BUSINESS MAN, AND DISCOVERED
INSTEAD SHE WAS STENOGRAPHING FOR NERO & THEN SOME!

CUBS THESE CINDERS!
RIGHT IN THE EYE—OR ELSE SOMEONE'S FITTING MY BALLS
AT ME!

NOW WHAT??
Will Angie discover he's really been pecked by one of his aunt's priceless pears, and that the rest are in Ella's possession?
